Send-a-kid-to-camp

Your dollars will make someone happy

Valley residents will get a chance to help send needy local children to a week of summer camp in the San Bernardino Mountains.

The children, between the ages of eight and 13, cannot go to camp unless you help. For they are the poor kids in the valley, the kids who can't even afford shoes, let alone a week at summer camp.

It costs $60 to send one child to a week of camp. At the camp each child will learn the value of living with nature and will be given three meals a day. In addition there are many planned activities such as crafts, swimming, hiking and horseback riding.

The Donrey Public Foundation Inc., is conducting the drive and all money donated will be turned over to the Pomona Valley YMCA for the use of their facilities at Bluff Lake. There is no administrative costs in this drive and all money donated will be used solely for the purpose of sending a child to camp. Children who will attend the camp will be chosen by area leaders from the Boy's Club, the Community Relations Board and the YMCA.

To give: make a check payable to the Donrey Public Foundation Inc., and mail it to P.O. Box 2708, Pomona, Calif. 91766.

Each day the names of all contributors will be printed in the Progress Bulletin unless persons request that their names remain anonymous.

The more money raised, the more children will be able to attend camp this summer.

Camp will begin on July 5 and will run for a full week.

A week at camp will provide a worthwhile character building experience for many children in the valley and, for the first time will get many of these children off the streets.

Civic organizations and groups as well as individuals are urged to participate in sponsoring children to attend a week of camping in the beautiful San Bernardino Mountains.

$405 million for a fresh start

Ford signs refugee aid bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford signed a $405 million bill Saturday to provide the funds to find homes, jobs, and a fresh start for more than 100,000 refugees from the war in Indochina.

Now that the measure has become law, contracts can be signed with nine private, voluntary agencies to assist in resettlement of the refugees. More than $70 million is earmarked for this purpose.

Another $65 million of the money will go to the Defense Department to cover its cost in airlifting the refugees while $155 million is for food, medical care and other items and $15 million will assist 20,000 refugees headed for third countries.

The first 500 refugees will arrive at the new Indiantown Gap, Pa., camp Wednesday, a State Department spokeswoman said, as the movement from Pacific centers to the U.S. resumes. As of Saturday there were 63,168 refugees in Pacific camps, 46,332 in U.S. resettlement camps and 19,467 had been processed and released.

The money will be available until June 30, 1976.

Ford actually signed two measures. One appropriates $405 million in special assistance to the refugees from Cambodia and Vietnam. It provides $305 million for the State Department to use in the relocation and resettlement of refugees. Also $100 million will be made available through the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to use in aiding the refugees with health and job counseling services in their resettlement in the United States.

A second measure authorizes total spending of $455 million for the refugees giving Congress the option to appropriate another $50 million should it be needed.

The authorization bill requires the government to make sure the refugees are told that they are free to return to their homelands if they wish and that their expenses would be paid.

Government funds, from other sources, had been used to pay the initial costs of the evacuation of the refugees and setting up of refugee camp now in operation at Camp Pendleton, Calif.; Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.; and Fort Cheffee, Ark. It cost about $98 million and these funds transferred from foreign aid monies were almost depleted.

Ford has set up a 17-member citizens advisory committee to assist in the refugee resettlement. It is headed by John Eisenhower, former ambassador to Belgium and son of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

President Ford originally asked for $507 million for the refugee aid effort. But the amount was reduced by Congress because its committees felt a precise number of refugees coming to this country was not really known. If more money is needed when the situation is evaluated further, it undoubtedly would be voted by Congress. Meanwhile, there is the $50 million extra authorized.

The refugee aid bill also required the administration to report to Congress within 30 days on how many refugees want to go back home and what arrangements are being made to help them do so. It also must report on how the resettlement plan is working to find homes for the refugees throughout the United States. During the last weeks of the war in Indochina, President Ford had urged Congress to provide $972 million in both militry and refugee aid to the embattled Indochina area.

U.S. determined that Mideast talks resume—Kissinger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Saturday the United States "is determined that diplomatic progress be resumed" in the Middle East and may unveil its own ideas if Israel and Egypt remain far apart.

At a news conference after visiting Europe, Kissinger outlined some of the expectations of President Ford's own 11,110-mile European trip beginning Wednesday.

Kissinger said Ford's meeting in Salzburg, Austria, June 1-2 with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will aim at furthering the Middle East negotiating process.

After the Sadat meeting and Ford's meeting in Washington later with Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin, Kissinger said he expects one of two outcomes:

— A finding by the Ford administration that resumed negotiations, aborted with the March 22 breakdown of Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy, can be encouraged with some hope of success.

—A determination that Egypt and Israel are so far apart, the United States "may suggest an avenue to proceed."

At one point, Kissinger spoke of a Geneva conference on the Middle East as the "probable outcome."

But he said he thinks the Soviet Union as well as the United States understand it is less complicated to initiate a conference "than to bring it off."

The secretary of state also left open the possibility of resumed step-by-step diplomacy of the type that failed him in March.

Ford's first stop in Europe will be Brussels and a summit meeting of government heads of the NATO allies.

In Brussels, Kissinger said, there would be talk about the future of the alliance in changing circumstances and an effort by Ford to reassure allies of the U.S. commitment to NATO.

Mayaguez crewman files suit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — One of the 39 Mayaguez crewmen taken captive by Cambodia has filed a suit charging the ship's owner and captain with jeopardizing the crew in pursuit of "excessive profits."

Albert Minichiello, 62-year-old assistant engineer who arrived home Tuesday, filed the class action suit in San Francisco County Superior Court on behalf of himself and the crew.

The suit claimed no specific dollar damages, which would be fixed by the jury if the suit was successful in court.

He said Sea-Land Inc. of Menlo Park, N.J., and Capt. Charles T. Miller endangered the crew by charting a course through the "ultra hzardous" waters near Cambodia, despite official warnings of potential danger.

Attorneys for Sea-Land and Miller, who remained with the ship in Hong Kong, were not available for comment.

Seizure of the container cargo ship May 12 prompted President Ford to send in Marines, sailors and fighter planes to rescue it. At least 38 Americans are known to have died in the operation.

Reunion for Ford, ex-shipmates

Ford visited with his old Navy buddies for about half an hour and was greeted by retired Rear Adm. Roger W. Mehle, who had been his commander.

The shipmates have been meeting every two years since 1965 when Ford, then in Congress, helped organize the first Monterey reunion.

Mehle and Charles Webb, co-chairman of the reunion, presented the President with a photograph of himself on the bridge of the Monterey holding a sextant and another shipmate, Allie Kleinpeter, gave him an oil painting of the ship.

Cracked Ford: "I hope my decisions as President are more accurate than my sightings as assistant navigator."

Ford went on to note that he was single at the time, but told the wives of his shipmates that, if any of them had worried about their husbands going astray, "there wasn't any room and there wasn't any company."

U.S. admits subs spy on Soviet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senior Pentagon officials conceded Saturday that the U.S. Navy has used specially equipped submarines to spy on the Soviet Union, but denied that the missions have violated that nation's three-mile territorial limits.

The officials denied a report in Sunday editions of the New York Times that U.S. submarines had at times penetrated the Soviet Union's three-mile territorial limit.

Both the Pentagon and the White House refused to officially comment on the report, but a senior Navy admiral asserted: "No submarines have been closer than three miles."

However, several Pentagon officials acknowledged nuclear-powered submarines have conducted intelligence-gathering operations for some time off the coasts of the Soviet Union and other nations.

Pentagon sources said it is widely known within the intelligence community that U.S. subs, along with satellites, are used to monitor information on Soviet missile sites and capabilities.

The Times, in a Washington-datelined story, said the missions, highly classified and code-named Holystone, were criticized by a number of former top government officials because of a number of accidents and near-misses.

Several senior Navy officers recalled a program named Holystone, said it had operated for about three or four years in the late '50s or early '60s, but that they thought it had been discontinued.

With today's sophisticated electronic devices, "we don't have to get within three miles," said one official.

Another official said there have been several brushes between U.S. submarines and Soviet craft but none off Soviet waters. He said the most recent was when a missile-firing sub leaving a U.S. submarine base at Holly Loch, Scotland, ran into a Soviet sub about six months ago.

Both submarines surfaced and went on their way, the official said. The U.S. sub in that incident was not on a spy mission, he said, noting that missile-firing submarines don't engage in intelligence gathering.

Doctors' strike to continue

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The doctors' strike in California will continue despite temporary laws just enacted to ease the malpractice insurance problem, leaders of the protest said Saturday.

David Willett, spokesman for the California Medical Association, said the new law "provides no immediate solution to the present crisis."

The law gives doctors malpractice insurance for between $1,000 and $2,000 for the rest of this year — compared to $9,000.

"This is no remedial legislation at all," said Dr. Malcolm Todd, president of the American Medical Association. "It is no solution; it is a stop-gap measure."

"The same problem will exist at the end of the year unless fundamental changes are made," Dr. Donald Dose, president-elect of the California Anesthesiological Society, said in San Diego.

Motorcyclists in head-on; 2 hurt

Two motorcyclists were seriously injured when their cycles collided head-on Saturday afternoon on Glendora Ridge Road, north of Glendora.

Fred Hall, 24, of 150 Foothill Blvd., Pomona, suffered a fractured knee and other leg injuries, and was admitted to County-USC Medical Center in Los Angeles for treatment. Robert Thoralson, 22, of West Covina, suffered a broken arm, and abrasions and was taken to San Dimas Community Hospital.

Parolee held as suspect

Man shot in holdup of half-way house

A 36-year-old Azusa man was reported in satisfactory condition Saturday after being shot in the chest during a robbery at a Covina half-way house.

Dario H Zuniga, 25, of Azusa, was arrested by sheriff's deputise on charges of robbery and assault with intent to commit murder, in connection with the shooting of Jose M. Cajero.

Cajero was in satisfactory condition at Covina Inter-Community Hospital after being shot in the upper right portion of the chest with a .22 caliber pistol, at 18252 Arrow Highway, Friday night.

Deputies said Zuniga, a parolee from prison who had been "excommunicated" from the half-way house for "creating problems", entered the house and demanded money of Cajero, who was sitting behind a desk.

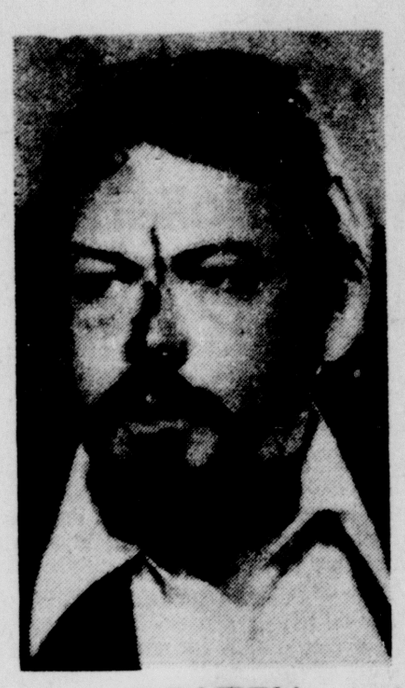

After Cajero said he had no money, the victim was shot once in the chest, with the bullet exiting his right arm. Cajero ran outside, and was shot at two or three more times, but the shots missed.

Cajero allegedly was wrestled to the ground by Zuniga afterwards, but deputies arrived on the scene at that point. Zuniga ran from the officers, but was captured and later booked at San Dimas sheriff's station.

Truck, car crash; 1 hurt

A 24-year-old Ontario man escaped serious injury Saturday afternoon when a truck rear-ended his auto on the San Bernardino Freeway, west of the Via Verde offramp.

Highway patrol officers said Scott's car stalled on the freeway about 5 p.m., and the truck, driven by Ron Smith, 33, of Nashaville, Ark., smashed into it. The truck jacknifed, and blocked two sestbound lanes of the freeway.

Ford to follow GM lead with minicars

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Lee A. Iacocca, president of Ford Motor Co. says Ford's chief goal in the late 1970s will be to develop minicars for consumers demanding more fuel-efficient vehicles.

Iacocca told The Associated Press in a 90-minute interview that Ford is going all out to halt the "onslaught" of imports with several new small cars during the next three years.

He declined to be specific, but hinted a Ford minicar is coming down the road, and predicted an industry turnaround would begin this fall.

"I happen to be one of the school that says 1976 will be a fantastic year for the economy. And the auto industry — boom!" Iacocca declared.

His economic forecast is that the recession will fade away by late this year, inflation will fall below a five per cent rate, and 1976 car sales will jump 20 per cent above this year's anemic levels.

General Motors announced Friday it will send America's first minicar into its 1976 model-year lineup to compete with the growing tide of imports for fuel-conscious car buyers.

GM's new entry will increase the pressure on small-car leader Ford to play catch-up by bringing out a minicar of its own.

The auto industry is in the second year of its worst slump in 40 years, and Iacocca said 1975 car sales will limp in at about 8.3 million, down from 8.9 million in 1974 and a record 11.4 million in 1973.

But he said cooling inflation, an increased money supply, lower interest rates and tax cuts — plus the deterioration of cars now on the road, and a strong used car market — will boost 1976 sales to around 10 million.

"A mere 10 per cent (increase) would be disappointing," he said. "How long can people stay out of the market and make do with what they have? Okay, they stay out four years, and now we find they will stay out five years. But six years? Hell no.

"There's some pent-up demand. Cars are wearing out and have to be replaced. I'd say 20 per cent is in the ballpark."

An even more bullish Thomas Murphy, GM's chairman, predicted Friday that car sales next year could top the 10 million mark. "I'm optimistic about the rest of this year and I expect sales in 1976 to be comfortably above 10 million," Murphy said.

The dramatic emergence into the small-car field by traditional big-car king GM and the muscle shown by imports apparently has rankled the top brass at the No. 2 auto company.

Ford boasts about its heritage as a small-car maker, and that tradition is of particular pride to Iacocca, who rose to the president's office on the success of the small "pony" cars he sired — the Mustang, Maverick and Pinto.

Iacocca made it clear that Ford intends to retain its small car image.

"The real pressures are building on small cars. They're suffering because of the import onslaught," he said in the harshest language yet by a U.S. car executive about the record 21 per cent share of the market imports have seized this year.

"Imports are being bought because of a deep-rooted concern about the possibilities of another oil embargo, dollar-agallon gas or rationing.

"In Southern California the minicar has taken off and our dealers don't have one. Well, our job is to respond and I think you will see somewhat of a revolution in the next three to four years in the kind of cars that you're used to seeing.

GM's new minicar will be a version of a car now marketed by the firm in several other countries.

It remains unclear how quickly Ford can respond with a minicar of its own. The company plans to begin production of such a car at a new $500 million complex in Valencia, Spain, in late 1976.

But Henry Ford II says there are no current plans to market that car in the U.S. because of the high cost of altering it to meet federal safety and emissions standards.

Iacocca has said a high-volume minicar for the American market would probably have to be built in this country, although common parts could be imported from Spain to cut costs.

Ontarian held in hit, run crash

A 25-year-old Ontario man has been arrested and booked into West End sheriff's jail on a charge of hit and run injury.

Bail was set at $2,000 for Joe Willie Hicks of 1100 E. Holt Ave. who was arrested about 12:55 a.m. Saturday.

Karen Ogden told police officers she was southbound on Grove Avenue about 11:20 p.m. Friday and was attempting to turn westbound onto Nocta Avenue when she was struck in the rear by a vehicle with a white camper.

Police said that two witnesses to the accident followed the vehicle to 1100 E. Holt Ave. where officers contaced Hicks and arrested him.

A passenger in the Ogden vehicle said she would contact her doctor for treatment of injuries.

Corona asks for reversal

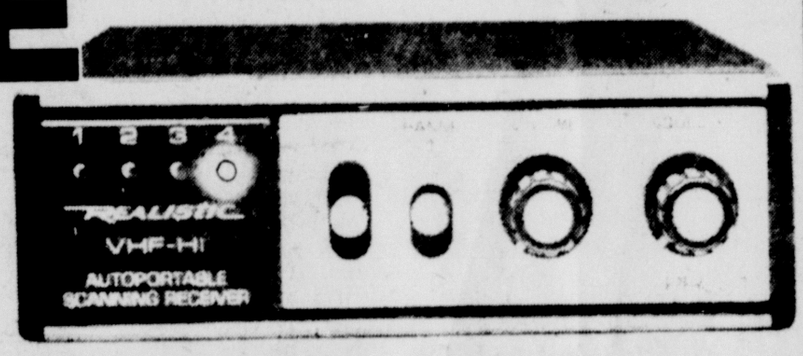

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Juan Corona's new lawyer has asked a California appellate court to reverse his 1973 mass murder conviction, arguing that his trial lawyer, who was gathering material for a book, had a "divided loyalty" between "his client and his pocket book."

Louis Garcia, Corona's new lawyer, said in an interview Saturday that his client did not have adequate counsel because of the trial lawyer's alleged preoccupation with the book.

Blimps as a new mass transit solution?

BLIMP PROMOTER Lester Freeman and his lighter-than-air motto chalked on office blackboard. Photo by Associated Press

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Lester Freeman is looking forward to the day he will catch the 7:15 commuter blimp to work.

"Thimp Blimp" reads the chalkboard above his desk, and the executive vice president of the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce intends to keep the faith.

"Nothing's impossible," Freeman said. "I'm just not going to sit here and say blimps won't work. Go tell that to the guys who walked on the moon."

Freeman said Miami already has applied for funds in the event the federal Urban Mass Transporation Administration authorizes a pilot program to test commuter blimps' feasibility.

"NASA is spending $250,000 for feasibility studies on lighter-than-air vehicles," Freeman said. "If pilot programs or demonstration projects follow, Miami wants a piece of the action."

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, working with the Goodyear Aerospace Corp., is to release results of its initial study next month.

While NASA spokesmen are hesitant to comment before that release, R.T. Madden, a Goodyear executive, indicated that the study could be favorable.

"The potential of buoyant vehicles for mass transit in urban areas is one of many missions we are investigating in our NASA feasibility study," Madden said. "Initial results indicate this application may offer advantages not currently available with other transport systems."

Freeman said the dirigibles could prove an economic and ecological boon.

"We could reduce air and noise pollution in our cities, reduce land surface traffic and drastically cut the costs of mass transit systems.

"In Miami, we're paying $5 million for right-of-way for each mile of urban expressway. When we are thinking about sinking $1.5 billion into a program, I think all the choices — alternative and supplemental — have to be studied," he said.

Freeman admitted that gaining public acceptance of blimps would be a major drawback.

"For some reason, people just want to laugh about it," he said. "But those same people aren't laughing when they have to put up with the traffic, the pollution and the cost of gasoline. Who knows what will be feasible 10 years from now."

Freeman also conceded that there are some real impracticalities to commuting by blimp.

"There are some aerodynamic problems, they're just too cumbersome right now. And we don't know if a blimp could be manufactured to carry enough persons to make it practical," Freeman said.

"But it's a hell of a dream, isn't it?"

Westside L.A. women jittery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police and residents were hesitant Saturday to talk about the person who has left a trail of 23 rapes and five slayings among elderly women in the city's west side in the last seven months.

The women have all been from 50 to 93, most of them in their 60s, and all living within a 10-mile area around the Hollywood-Wilshire district on the west side of Los Angeles, causing the attacker to be called "The Westside Rapist."

In an intensive manhunt, authorities assigned a special task force to track down the man they believe is responsible for the attacks stretching back to last fall.

"I don't want to talk about it," one woman declared Saturday.

"Don't use my name. I'm afraid enough as it is."

At a home for the elderly in the area a woman said no one wanted to discuss the matter.

Asked if the special squad concentrating on the case was aiming its efforts at the late night period when the attacks have occurred, the officer said, "Our concentration is on every hour."

Police think the attacker is likely one person because of circumstances surrounding all 23, but they decline to discuss the specific details linking them.

The attacks have all come late at night, striking women who were alone at home or on the streets, said police.

And those who survived have given descriptions that largely coincide, police said.

The latest attack came this last Thursday when the body of Effie Martin, 76, was found by friends.

She had been raped, beaten and strangled and the case was similar enough to the other instances to be linked to them..

Investigators are reluctant to discuss how they are working on the case, but say a special team of plainclothes officers has taken to the streets in unmarked cars and on bicycles in an effort to track down the attacker.

Said police Commander Pete Hagan:

"We think he probably looks around the neighborhood in the daytime for elderly women who are outside — taking care of their garden or emptying the trash — because he has consistently hit on women who live alone."

The first appearance of the "Westside Rapist" was last November, with all the attacks late at night, officers said. The first four victims were killed.

As in the "Skid Row Slasher" case here, the coroner's office has also formed a special team to work with the special police task force formed to work on the series of crimes.

Suez Canal rates will double those of 1967 at reopening

CAIRO (AP) — The Suez Canal Authority announced Saturday new rates for ships when the canal reopens June 5. They are nearly double those in effect when the waterway was closed eight years ago by the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Authority Chairman Mahour Ahmed Mashour also told a news conference the charges would have to be raised again if there is a "considerable increase " in the price of oil.

Speaking in a garden outside the canal authority building in Cairo at tables with tea and pastries laid out, Mashour said Egypt could no longer apply pre-war rates because inflation and several currency devaluations had substantially changed the world's financial picture.

As if to underscore this fact, he said canal rates would be calculated in Special Drawing Rights — SDRs — a device established by the Internatinal Monetary Fund to cushion currency fluctuations. Pre-war rates were quoted in Egyptian pounds.

Mashour said the new rates would be 1.611 SDRs for each ton of Suez Canal net tonnage for oil tankers and merchant ships and 1.772 SDRS for passenger and military ships. Ships in ballast or empty will pay 1.289 SDRs per net ton.

Thus the new charge is approximately $2 per Suez Canal net ton in comparison with the 1967 rates, which were 98.9 cents a ton.

A Suez Canal net ton is a special measure the authority has used to calculate rates for a long period because there is no international agreement on fixing tonnage rates. There is also a Panama Canal net ton.

Mashour said the Suez Canal net ton was "a volume and not a weight that equals 100 cubic feet of a ship ready to receive cargo. It means approximately two tons of cargo."

The 57-year-old engineer said using this formula the canal actually would be charging 0.80 SDRs for each ton.

He said the increase was approximately "90 to 100 per cent." He said this was "reasonable when you consider the price of oil has increased by four times over 1967 prices and inflation."

Mashour said the saving to shipowners using the 103-milelong waterway between the Mediterranean and the Red Sea instead of the route around the tip of Africa would be approximately $6 a ton.

Since the canal authority is taking $2, "we think this is a very, very attractive rate for ships using the canal and we think the rate structure we have established leaves most of the saving to the shipowners."

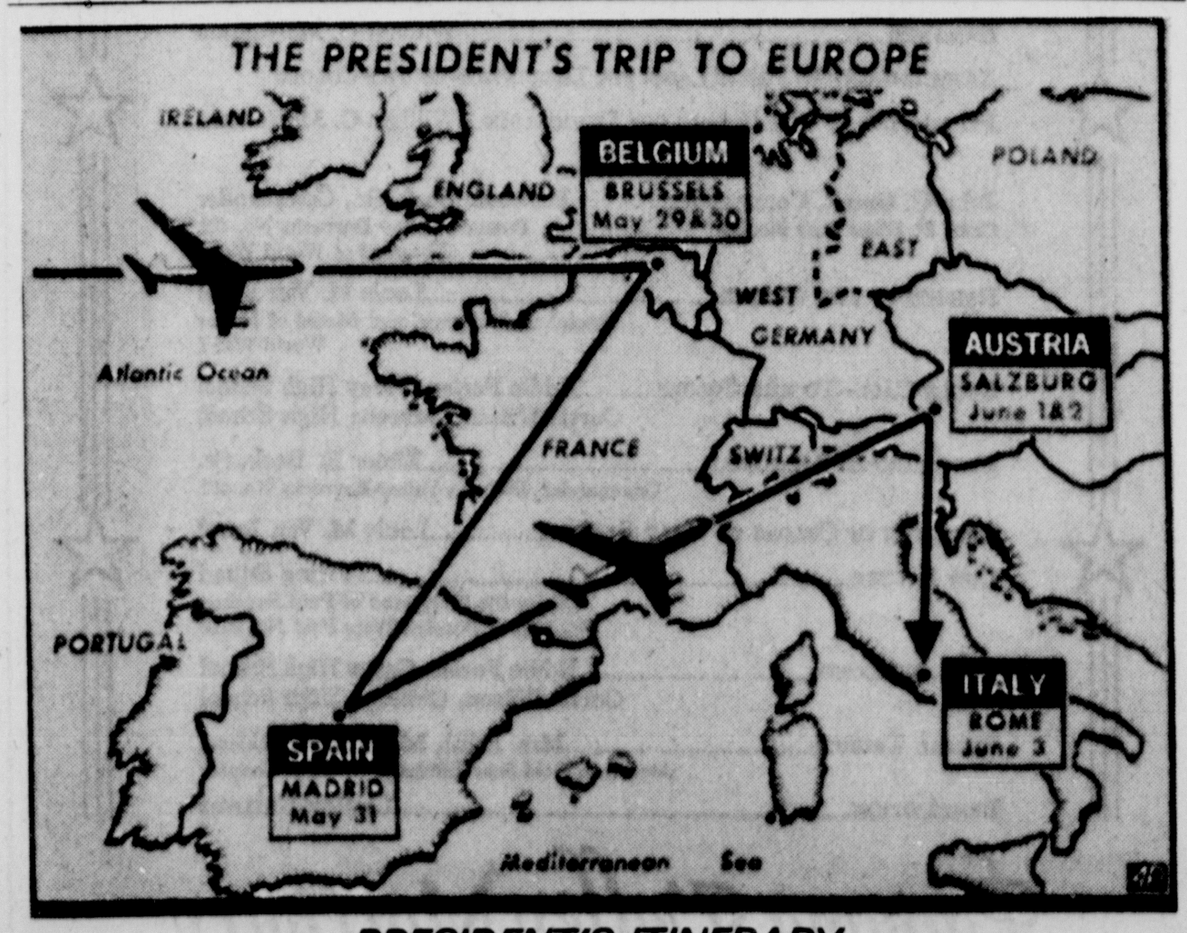

Dennis Martin-Jenkins, the chairman of the London-based International Chamber of Shipping, an owners' association that represents two-thirds of the free world's tonnage, said the new rates were a "large increase but in view of increased costs it is somewhere near reasonable. It doesn't appall me."

Martin-Jenkins said the final answer on whether the waterway would be viable from an economic point of view would come when London underwriters fix an insurance rate.

Meanwhile, two West German cargo ships ended one of the longest voyages in maritime history with a triumphant return to Hamburg, eight years after they were trapped in the Suez Canal by the June 1967 Middle East war.

Dressed in fluttering flags, the Muensterland and the Nordwind steamed slowly down the broad Elbe River to their berths, escorted for several miles by an armada of yachts, motorboats and other small craft.

Alpha Beta's 75th anniversary

The Alpha Beta Co. will observe its 75th birthday with a chainwide sales promotion during the next week, William R. Deeley, president of the food chain, has announced.

It was 75 years ago that the Southern California-based food outlet opened its first store in Pomona. Since then, the company has become part of one of the leading food chains in the nation.

Alpha Beta introduced self service in 1914, and in 1929 the 24 stores using the "Alpha Beta" system of arranging groceries alphabetically were incorporated as Alpha Beta Food Markets.

Within the next decade the company founded additional supermarkets, started cattle ranches and acquired its own meat packing plant. During the 1940s the chain created a grocery warehousing system, and was the first food chain in the West to have its own delicatessen kitchen.

In 1961 Alpha Beta merged with the American Food Stores (Acme) and continued to grow. The corporation built a distribution system in La Habra and added drug stores and restaurants to its holdings. It completed a $12 million bakery in La Habra and established a second distribution center for the north at Milpitas.

In 1974 the company opened its first out-of-state store in Phoenix, Ariz. Now the number of Alpha Beta stores totals 272.

Deeley said Alpha Beta offers shoppers not only the best food at the lowest possible prices, but also the best and most complete consumer service.

Late rally helps market

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran into some stiff opposition from profit taking forces this past week, but recouped most of its early losses with a Friday rally aided by a new decline in the bank prime lending rate.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials emerged with a 5.71 net loss at 831.90, while a good many other market measures finished on the plus side.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, for one, was up .15 at 90.58, and the New York Stock Exchange composite managed to add .09 to 48.05.

Testimony to the caution that dominated the market for most of the week was the sharp drop in NYSE trading volume, to 89.30 million shares from 120.77 million the week before.

The turnover total was the lightest in seven weeks.

After a relatively steady session on Monday, the Dow dropped more than 19 points in the next two trading days in profit taking aggravated by the news that consumer prices had registered a renewed rise in April.

The Labor Department's consumer price index for the month, issued Wednesday morning, climbed at a 7.2 per cent annual rate — twice the pace set in March.

But the market had recovered its balance again by Thursday, and the next day the Dow jumped 12.99 points in a rally that seemed to draw its inspiration from several sources.

The most readily apparent was a prime rate cut by New York's First National City Bank was 7¼ to 7 per cent — a two-year low — while the 7¼ level was still in the final stages of spreading through the banking industry.

In addition, there was continued evidence of dropping business loan demand and a growing money supply in the Federal Reserve's weekly money and credit statistics.

And the NYSE reported after Thursday's close that its short interest had hit a new high as of mid-May.

The short interest is the number of shares borrowed and sold and not yet bought back by investors hoping to profit by price declines. A large short interest figure is traditionally considered bullish because it represents assured future demand for the stock or stocks involved.

After its end-of-week recovery, the market was bidding to record its fifth monthly gain in a row. The Dow showed a net advance of more than 10 points with four sessions to go in May.

As the Stock Trader's Almanac published by the Hirsch Organization points out, only once in the past decade has the Dow turned in a plus showing for May — and that was a slim 6½-point advance in 1972.

In all, 845 issues gained and 918 lost ground among the 2,008 traded on the NYSE during the week.

Santa needs help

Santa Claus needs a new branch workshop in Pomona to store, process and distribute toys to needy youngsters next Christmas.

His present workshop on the Pomona Mall is about to be torn down and city officials are seeking to have the old building vacated.

"We need to find a permanent location so we can begin processing toys for Christmas which is only seven months away," said W. C. Jones, president of Santa Claus, Inc.

"Because of our need to move, much of the work that is normally started by this time has been delayed."

He is seeking a building large enough to store toys that will be distributed to several thousand children.

Because most donations received go to purchase toys or replacement parts, the group can't afford to pay any rent.

Packing firm is fined $125

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A Firebaugh packing company has been fined $125 for packing and offering immature cantaloupes for sale, the state Food and Agriculture Department says.

The firm, A. Levi and J. Zentner, also was placed on two years' bench probation by the Firebaugh District Court.

In a statement Monday, state officials said that immature melons are generally hard and flavorless.

Red cross blood program is topic

Pomona Red Cross has planned a Friday morning meeting entitled "Be Nice to Me — I'm a Volunteer" as an orientation and information program.

The meeting from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the chapter office, 420 N. Reservoir St., Pomona, is designed to train present and potential volunteers in the blood donor program of the American Red Cross.

In addition to volunteers who help staff the blood donor center at the chapter house and the mobile units which operate in the community, guests will include representatives from the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary who will assist when the new satellite center opens at the hospital this summer.

Speakers will include Marcia Weddle, director of the Los Angeles County Regional Blood Donor Center laboratory, and John Rinset, assistant administrator at PVCH.

To be discussed are current information about blood use, fees related to donation and transfusion and changes in chapter programs.

Volunteer to be cited

Phillip Hastings of Pomona will be one of some 125 volunteers to be honored Saturday in Los Angeles for his work with the Travelers Aid Society of Los Angeles.

Hastings and other volunteers will be presented with service pins at an appreciation picnic sponsored by the organization, which provides assistance and information to thousands each year at Los Angeles International Airport and downtown Los Angeles bus terminal.

Mostly a success, but some doubt lingers

L'Affair Mayaguez: a step-by-step accounting

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

And they blame it for the confusion and inconsistencies in the story of the Mayaguez. They blame it for some of the questions that have not been answered and may never be answered.

A painstaking study of the three-day saga shows delay in getting word to the President, inconsistent reports on casualties and confusion over Cambodian intentions.

But the American military followed a hastily drawn rescue plan that retrieved the ship and its 39 crewmen despite some foul-ups in carrying out the operation.

This is the story of the SS Mayaguez, a plain American merchant ship without an American name that few Americans ever heard of before Monday May 12.

The emergency message crackled over the radio:

"Have been fired upon and boarded by Cambodian armed forces at 9 degrees, 48 minutes north, 102 degrees, 53 minutes east. Ship being towed to unknown Cambodian port."

The ship was the Mayaguez, a commonplace American freighter bound from Hong Kong to Thailand and then to Singapore. It had just been taken over by a rag-tag band of Cambodians and, as the Mayaguez moved under armed escort at half speed toward a Cambodian island, the ship's radio operator kept sending that distress message, apparently unnoticed by the Cambodian boarders.

Word then was flashed to Washington, arriving in the Pentagon's National Military Command Center 53 minutes after Delta's radio plucked it out of the air. The time was 5:11 a.m. EDT Monday May 12. It was 4:11 Monday afternoon in the Gulf of Thailand.

Thus began three dramatic days when the Mayaguez dominated center stage in what was viewed as a test of U.S. willingness to defend its interests following reverses in Indochina.

The United States won the test and freed the Mayaguez and its 39 crewmen. There was a price: 38 U.S. servicemen dead, three missing and 50 wounded in all phases of the rescue operation.

After the crisis was over, the Ford administration congratulated itself on reaffirming freedom of the seas in recapturing the 10,500-ton cargo ship and forcing the release of the crew.

Public opinion polls reflected overwhelming approval of President Ford's response to the seizure of the ship, and there was bipartisan support for the President in Congress.

Exultation over the succcessful outcome of the operation was tempered by the dawning realization that the cost in U.S. lives was higher than the administration at first indicated.

The belated official disclosure of the full casualty toll among U.S. Marines, sailors and airmen left room for the impression that the administration may have held back this bad news.

Pentagon officials deny any such intent, blaming the foul-up on field reporting and difficulties in head counting after the operation.

Early reports pictured a smoother operation than it turned out to be. Actually, the Marines had a tough fight with a more heavily armed Cambodian force than the U.S. public first was led to believe.

For this, Pentagon officials blame fragmentary, conflicting and confusing messages from the scene — "the fog of war." Some of the confusion has not yet been cleared up and some may never be.

The operation provoked other questions and some criticism.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger denied the United States seized on the incident as an "excuse to prove our manhood."

Some wondered aloud whether the United States sought to punish Cambodia, particularly in one bombing raid on the mainland well after the American seamen were safely aboard an American destroyer.

And there were questions about failure to heed advance signs of trouble in those waters, about a possible intelligence falldown, about how hard the United States tried to resolve the dispute by diplomatic means before resorting to armed force.

When it was seized, the Mayaguez, a container ship named after a port in Puerto Rico and operated by the Sea-Land Corp., was moving through the Gulf of Thailand bound for Sattahip in southern Thailand.

A Cambodian government broadcast claimed the Mayaguez was on a spy mission; the ship's owners denied it. Last week, a German publication said the Mayaguez carried CIA records and equipment which had been removed from South Vietnam before its fall.

The company said later

Mayaguez

SON WON'T COME HOME .. Mrs. Marion Boyd displays photo of her Marine son who was one of 15 servicemen killed during rescue operations for crew of the container ship Mayaguez.

the Mayaguez carried "only general cargo." The Pentagon said the ship was hauling some military cargo, describing it as mail and post exchange supplies for U.S. servicemen stationed in Thailand.

Off the tiny rocky island of Poulo Wai, the Mayaguez was challenged by what the captain said was a motor torpedo boat.

"I reduced the ship's speed to maneuvering," he recalled.

"The engines were stopped at 11:21 a.m. after the gunboat had fired at me with antiaircraft guns. I stopped the vessel and the motor torpedo boat pulled alongside."

"Seven men boarded my vessel — seven armed men anywhere from 10 years old to around 30 — all carrying grenade throwers, shoulder rocketthrowers, AK47s (assault guns), and a U.S. Army field pack telephone," Miller said.

"None of the men that boarded the vessel was able to speak English. They pointed to me and in the direction of the gunboat and indicated I follow."

The position of the Mayaguez at that point is important, but there is uncertainty about how far the ship was from the island of Poulo Wai which is claimed by both Cambodia and Vietnam, and from the Cambodian mainland.

Miller placed his position in "free ocean" 6½ miles southeast of the island. The White House fixed it at eight miles. Cambodia claims a 12-mile jurisdiction from its territory, including islands.

The White House and the Pentagon said the Mayaguez was 60 nautical miles (69 statute miles) from the Cambodian mainland. Sea-Land said the Mayaguez was 85 miles out when it was seized. The United States argued the vessel was making an "innocent passage" and thus was protected by international convention from being molested.

When the message from Jakarta arrived at the Pentagon, the watch officer in the command center immediately informed the White House and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger.

President Ford was told about 6:30 a.m., a White House source said. There is no explanation for this delay of more than an hour from the time the word reached Washington.

Kissinger came to Ford's Oval Office in the White House at 9:23 a.m. and the two discussed the seizure and its implications.

Less than two hours later, at 11:15 a.m., the Pentagon ordered the first military move.

The destroyer Holt, exercising in the South China Sea southwest of the U.S. naval base at Subic Bay in the Philippines, was the closest U.S. combat ship to the scene. But she was more than 1,000 miles away.

In the same vicinity as the Holt was the supply ship Vega.

The Holt's main gun was out of commission. But she and the Vega were directed to sail at once for the Gulf of Thailand. Technicians worked feverishly on the gun while the destroyer plowed along at full speed. They got it fixed in time.

Meanwhile, the government's crisis machinery got into gear.

Ford assembled his National Security Council in the Cabinet Room shortly after noon Monday for the first of four such NSC meetings and many other strategy conferences over the following three days and nights.

After that first session, the White House broke the news to the country and the world.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen announced the seizure of the Mayaguez by a Cambodian naval vessel and quoted Ford as calling it "an act of piracy."

Nessen said the Mayaguez had been "fired upon and boarded by Cambodian armed forces from a Cambodian naval vessel."

The White House spokesman said the State Department had been instructed to "demand the immediate release of the ship and warned that "failure to do so would have the most serious consequences."

Although administration spokesmen stressed a diplomatic approach to gaining release of the Mayaguez and its crew, the Pentagon increased its military preparations on orders from the White House.

At 2:41 p.m. Monday the aircraft carrier Coral Sea was about two days' sailing time south of Singapore, bound for Australia, when she got word from the Joint Chiefs of Staff to turn around and head for waters off Cambodia. With the Coral Sea went her three escorting destroyers.

About 19 hours after the Mayaguez was boarded, the U.S. government issued a "special warning" to mariners to stay well clear of the Cambodian and Vietnamese coasts.

Out in the Gulf of Thailand, the Mayaguez's captain was stalling. The Cambodians wanted him to steer the ship to the port of Kompong Som, on Cambodia's coast.

"I told them I could not navigate," Miller recalled. "I said our radar was out."

HER HUSBAND DID — Mrs. Ervin Anderson clasps hands in thankful gesture as her husband, a Mayaguez crewman, debarks from an airplane carrying him back from the Far East after Marines rescued him.

So the Mayaguez spent the night at anchor off Poulo Wai island. The captain stayed on the bridge. His crew remained awake.

The next morning, Cambodian time, Miller reluctantly hoisted anchor and the Mayaguez sailed in the general direction of the mainland as ordered by its Cambodian captors.

Again, Miller tried to delay, "hoping to see if our military would come to our aid." The Mayaguez chugged so slowly that it took about 5½ hours to reach Koh Tang, an island about 30 miles from the Cambodian mainland. The ship anchored about one mile offshore.

"A launch came alongside with more insurgents and ... the crew was ordered to get off the ship," Miller said. The crew and captain went ashore in two fishing boats under the guns of two patrol boats, he said.

That move apparently made U.S. officials in Washington erroneously believe the crew, or at least part of it, was on Koh Tang when the U.S. attack was launched later. Pentagon sources told of U.S. reconnaissance planes seeing Caucasians being ferried to the island from the freighter.

"During this time, our jets came along and found out we were anchored off this land," Miller said. "We lay in the fishing boats all night listening to our reconnaissance planes circling us ..."

The planes had come out from Utapao, the U.S. airbase in southern Thailand.

At one point, a P3 Navy antisubmarine patrol plane was hit and damaged slightly by Cambodian gunfire as it flew overhead.

As the Mayaguez was steaming toward Koh Tang, other military preparations were under way.

With no U.S. ground combat forces in the immediate area, top officials considered sending Air Force security troopers from Thailand by helicopter to land on the Mayaguez while it was still at sea.

To get ready for this, the Air Force arranged to assemble about 100 of its security troops at Utapao.

Elecciones el martes en dos distritos

Unos 28, 196 votantes registrados tendran la oportunidad de decidir el martes proximo si debemos de dar mas dinero al Distrito Escolar de las Escuelas Unificadas del Valle de Pomona para los cursos de 1975-76 y 1976-77.

Ello se decidira por votacion in los 40 precintos consolidados en las ciudades de Pomona, Spadra y Diamond Bar. Las urnas electorales se abriran a las 7 a.m. y seran cerradas a las 7 p.m.

Robert E. Wentz, superintendente del distrito escolar, dice que si el proyectado aumento fracasa, se impone la supresion en las escuelas superiores de los equipos de deportes, los maestros dedicados a mejorar la capacidad de lectura, 60 clases electivas en las escuelas pre y superiores, reducir los servicios en las bibliotecas y de los senores consejeros, reducir los servicios prestados por las enfermeras, sicologos y medicos, y cerrar dos pequenas escuelas elementales.

La proposicion tiene caluroso soporte de los Ciudadanos para Una Mejor Escuela Unificada, presidida por Mr. Roy O. Day, y la oposicion de 40 miembros de un grupo llamado Protectores del Dinero de los Impuestos, presidido por Mr. Ed. Harrison.

Las necesidades de los ciudadanos retirados regularmente no conciernen al cuerpo electoral, pero los votantes de Pomona en las proximas elecciones del martes tendran la oportunidad de determinar la suerte de una proposicion referente a un grupo de casas dedicados a viciendas para los citados ciudadanos.

La proposicion esta apoyada por "Greater Pomona Housing Corp.", que se propone construir un grupo de 172 apartamentos en la propiedad de la antigua escuela "Emerson", ubicada en los linderos de las calles Palomares, Pearl, Gibbs y San Francisco.

Los apartamentos seran ofrecidos a los ciudadanos retirados a un bajo costo, estimado entre $155.00 y $165.00 por mes.

* * *

Los votantes del Distrito Escolar de Walnut tendran la oportunidad de decidir si aprueban un aumento en los impuestos en las elecciones del proximo martes.

Los miembros de un comite titulado PASS (People Actively Supoting Scholls) sostienen que el presupuesto del distrito para 1975-76 se reducira en la candidad de $425,000 si la medida propuesta fracasa, y en 1976-77 sera necesario rebajar $725,000.

Si el aumento propuesto es aprobado, ello significara un incremento de 68 centavos por cada $100 del valor estimado de cada propiedaddurante 1975-76 y ligeramente menos en 1976-77.

Para una casa con un valor de $32,000 significara un aumento anual de $42.

Some day late this year, somewhere in the world, in some crowded city or some distant town, some woman will labor and bring forth a child. And yellow or black, brown or white or red, there will be four billion of us.

Mankind has been around two million years or more. When Christ was born there were only 250 million humans on earth. By 1830 we counted our first billion. We doubled that by 1930. And by the end of this year we'll double again.

Even trying not to, we will double again in some 35 years.

But the arithemetic milestone is only an introduction. In the world today there are two salient facts of life.

—More people live in squalor without enough to eat and prey to infectious disease than at any time in the world's history. The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization estimates there are 460 million malnourished people in the world — and many experts consider that figure conservative. Of four billion, that's almost one out of eight.

—There are more women of child-bearing age capable of reproducing than at any time in the world's history. Roughly these women number 800 million. That's how the fertility gun is loaded.

So the number of people living has increased dramatically. The quality of their lives has not.

Malaria still kills about a million African children a year. Cholera, dysentery, typhoid and other water-born diseases kill five million babies a year and attack 500 million other humans. Available resources dwindle and there is not enough food, in some parts of the world.

At least one out of four children born in developing countries will not reach the age of five. The main cause is malnutrition. Half of the children in those countries may be inadequately nourished, says FAO. Malnutrition, especially lack of protein in pregnancy and in early years, cuts short mental and physical potential.

Most experts are heartened by lowering birthrates in the last five years, a trend they attribute at least in part to family planning programs. But in a world where the average birthrate is 31.5 per thousand people and the average death rate is 12.8, they are understandably cautious.

One of these is Dr. Reimert Ravenholt, head of the population program for the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Ten years ago, he says, the world was growing at the rate of 2 per cent per year. For every 14 deaths per thousand people there were 34 births. That meant with a 3.2 billion population, 66 million more people per year in 1965.

Today, the growth rate has fallen to 1.6 or 1.7 per cent. That still means an annual increase of 64 million people. "But the trend is favorable and the annual decrease will be favorable in the years ahead," Ravenholt says.

It will take more than a decrease in birthrate to satisfy some. It will take a restructuring of age groups. It will mean fewer people in the reproductive age groups. The United States, for instance, is now at a replacement growth level, thanks to a social pattern in which young families are having fewer babies. But the potential birth rate in the United States, as in the world, is tremendous. Some experts applaud the current trend and worry about the potential. Some applaud the progress so much they tend to ignore the potential.

"This is really capricious," says Robert Avedon, president of the privately funded Population Reference Bureau. "Anything of a social or an economic nature can trigger a tremendous change in these fertile young people. If literally they start having babies at a rate in excess of the present rate of two, you have a numbers game, an explosion, the likes of which this country has no notion of."

To Avedon, and to his research director, Leon Bouvier, zero population growth is when the population's fertile age group is in balance with the rest of the population, thereby defusing the population "bomb."

"Even if every woman in the world restricted herself to having two children by 1985," says Bouvier, "we would still reach 8 billion people before we ever leveled off. Why? Because of this pent-up potential. I'm not a pessimist. I'm not a doomsayer myself, but I get burned up at the optimists who fail to see the tremendous dynamics involved here."

"The U.N. population projections show the world population going from the current four billion to somewhere between 10 and 16 billion before it eventually stabilizes. I don't think it's realistic." Brown thinks other things would interfere.

The U.N. projections, he says, are based on certain assumptions about family size based on current surveys, then projected into the future. They ignore, he says, concerns about ecology, human toxicology.

"Environmental disturbances are beginning to affect death rates now in many countries of the world," says Brown. "There's something wrong with the notion that the earth's ecosystem will support four times as many people as we have today without coming apart, without the oceans dying, without too much heat being generated, without the climatic system going awry."

"We tend to talk about a life solution or a death solution," says Peter Cott, executive director of the Population Institute, which operates with Foundation grants. "The death solution will take care of itself, and we'll starve a lot of people to death before we get around to bringing it into balance. We'll probably have enough wars and enough collapsing governments to take care of the death part."

It is that particular awareness — a political awareness — that is changing the fertility scene, many experts believe. Some nations that followed a policy that said more people is more power are deciding that the converse is true.

Food and population are today political exigencies. Says Robert Avedon: "You've had in this year alone, traceable to population pressures, changes in 15 governments in the world, and that's a conservative figure. It's going to happen more and more... When bellies are empty and they have people marching and dying, they're going to have to start waking up."

One reason for the current decline in world growth rates is the family planning assistance provided by the U.S. Agency for International Development, a program only 10 years old.

"I'm really quite encouraged and optimistic," says Ravenholt, who heads the population division. "This is my 10th year in building a world population program. It wasn't until the late '60s we began to get enough money and commodities into these countries to make a difference. In many cases it wasn't until the last few years."

In its 10 years, AID has spent about $750 million on population control. Of that, $95 million has been given to the U.N. Fund for Population Activities which aids countries which, for political or other reasons, cannot approach the U.S. for help.

For instance, AID has distributed 345 million monthly cycles of birth control pills, at 15 cents a cycle, almost a billion condoms and over six million IUDS.

Certainly the pill and other contraceptives, even abortions — the afterthought control — have made great changes in the world's birthrates.

Three European nations — West Germany, East Germany and Luxembourg — have stabilized their populations. Three others probably will reach that point this year — Austria, Belgium and the United Kingdom, says Brown of Worldwatch. They only constitute 4 per cent of the world's population, but, says Brown, "it's a beginning and it shows countries can do it if they want to."

People seem to want to. There are an estimated 40 to 50 million abortions in the world each year. In Washington, D.C., last year, there were more abortions than live births, Brown says.

In Japan, in the late '60s, the birthrate dropped by one-fourth in just one year and popped up again the next year. Why? Because it coincided with the oriental calendar's Year of the Horse, during which female children are said to be born ugly and unable to marry.

Spontaneously or intentionally people control their birthrate when they want to, when they can.

Still this is 1975. And sometime in this fall, there will be four billion human beings, more or less healthy, more or less prepared to survive.

but crashed soon afterward and killed all on board, including four crewmen.

Although the Pentagon announced the crash Tuesday night, Washington time, it did not link the accident to the Mayaguez in any way. For days afterward, the U.S. government would not acknowledge using Thai bases for the rescue operation because of the Bangkok government's objections.

More than a week after the end of the Mayaguez episode, the Pentagon finally acknowledged last Wednesday its linkage with the Nakhom Phanom crash.

Adding the 23 Nakhom Phanom dead to those killed in the attack on Koh Tang raised the over-all death toll to 38. Little hope was held for three other Marines listed as missing after the battle on the island.

The Air Force security-troop option was never used.

By Tuesday morning, Washington time, Ford and his advisers were certain that the Mayaguez and its crew were held at and near Koh Tang and they decided on different courses.

A broad range of options had been presented by the military chiefs, reportedly including B52 bomb strikes on the Cambodian mainland and mining the Kompong Som harbor.

That move apparently made U.S. officials in Washington erroneously believe the crew, or at least part of it, was on Koh Tang when the U.S. attack was launched later. Pentagon sources told of U.S. reconnaisance planes seeing Caucasians being ferried to the island from the freighter.

"During this time, our jets came along and found out we were anchored off this land," Miller said. "We lay in the fishing boats all night listening to our reconnaissance planes circling us . . ."

The planes had come out from Utapao, the U.S. airbase in southern Thailand.

At one point, a P3 Navy anti-submarine patrol plane was hit and damaged slightly by Cambodian gunfire as it flew overhead.

As the Mayaguez was steaming toward Koh Tang, other military preparations were under way.

With no U.S. ground combat forces in the immediate area, top officials considered sending Air Force security troopers from Thailand by helicopter to land on the Mayaguez while it was still at sea.

To get ready for this, the Air Force arranged to assemble about 100 of its security troops at Utapao.

A helicopter loaded with 19 security troops took off from Nakhom Phanom airbase in northeast Thailand, but crashed soon afterward and killed all on board, including four crewmen.

The Air Force security-troop option was never used.

By Tuesday morning, Washington time, Ford and his advisers were certain that the Mayaguez and its crew were held at and near Koh Tang and they decided on different courses.

A broad range of options had been presented by the military chiefs, reportedly including B52 bomb strikes on the Cambodian mainland and mining the Kompong Som harbor.

At an NSC meeting Tuesday morning, Ford ordered that any Cambodian boats trying to move between Koh Tang and the mainland "be intercepted with minimal force."

The President also gave the go-ahead for flying U.S. Marines into position to stage direct helicopter assaults from Thailand to retake the ship and rescue the crew. Thailand, nervous about the Khmer Rouge regime in neighboring Cambodia, warned the United States not to use Thai soil to launch any military actions. But U.S. relations with Thailand took second place to the urgency of making clear, as Kissinger put it later, that "there are limits beyond which the United States cannot be pushed and that the United States is prepared to defend its interests."

At 12:10 p.m. EDT Tuesday, secret orders were transmitted from the Pentagon to "execute" the movement of 150 Marines from Subic Bay to Thailand. At 3:30 p.m. a second order told Marine commanders on Okinawa to ship another 1,000 leathernecks to Thailand. Already alerted, the combatloaded Marines soon took off in big Air Force transport planes for Utapao.

Throughout Tuesday and Wednesday, reports circulated in Washington about some differences of opinion at high administration levels on how much force to use against the Cambodians.

Kissinger was pictured as urging tough measures. Schlesinger was said to favor "controlled" and limited action.

Reports persisted that the administration was discussing possible "punitive" strikes against Cambodian military targets to teach the new rulers in Phnom Penh a lesson.

In fact, there were two Navy bomber strikes on a Cambodian airfield and on oil storage facilities, a naval base and some warehouses near Kompong Som. The raid came 37 minutes after the White House was certain the Mayaguez's crew was back in U.S. hands.

The Pentagon took the position the bombing strikes were necessary to safeguard U.S. Marines then still fighting on Koh Tang.

A White House log records that, at an NSC meeting at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday, the President ordered "military forces that might be used to be placed on a one-hour alert."

Among other forces, B52 bombers on Guam went on alert, but they never were used.

Kissinger said Ford tried to give diplomacy every chance to work for 60 hours following the ship's seizure. "There was no chance during the crisis to resolve it diplomatically," Kissinger said.

Still, there is a lingering feeling that the administration may have done little more than go through the diplomatic motions for the benefit of the record. A U.S. appeal for help to United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim fits that picture, some think.

Since the United States has no diplomatic relations with the new Cambodian regime, Kissinger used the Communist Chinese mission in Washington as the channel to communicate with Phnom Penh.

There are indications the Chinese returned the U.S. note about 24 hours after it was handed to them on Monday. Whether the Chinese ever passed the contents to Cambodia is not known.

It is obvious the administration was convinced quick recovery of the ship and its crew was essential.

White House spokesman Nessen said the North Korean capture of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo in 1968 "was in everybody's mind." Nessen said officials feared that, as in the case of the Pueblo's crew, the Mayaguez sailors might be taken out of reach and held prisoner for many months.

Also, Nessen said, Ford and his advisers were worried about the safety of the freighter's crew in light of reports of Cambodian executions after the fall of the U.S.-backed regime.

On Tuesday evening May 13, about three hours after U.S. Marines started arriving in Thailand, military commanders in the Pacific flashed word to the White House and Pentagon that the Cambodians apparently were attempting to transfer the Mayaguez seamen from Koh Tang to the mainland by boat.

Miller and his sailors were herded aboard a Thai fishing boat, which the Cambodians had detained, and the boat cast off for Kompong Som some 30 miles away.

The Mayaguez captain said the pilots of U.S. jets sent to intercept "did everything that was possible without hitting the boat to try and make us turn around and go back to the ship."

The American pilots fired rockets and machine guns in front of the boat and on both sides, coming as close as 10 feet with their fire. "We were strafed and bombed," Miller said. Three of his men were struck with shrapnel, struck with shrapnel.

When their fire failed to make the boat turn about, Miller said, the American planes twice dropped gas. The first time it was tear gas, he said, and the second time either tear gas or nausea gas.

But this blocking attempt failed and Miller said the jets went away after four hours when the boat came close to the Cambodian port.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Joseph Laitin read a statement saying that three Cambodian patrol craft had been destroyed. But he said nothing about the use of tear gas or nausea gas by U.S. planes. He also did not say what happened to the captive U.S. seamen the Caombodians were trying to move. However, his statement that "one boat succeeded in reaching Kompsong Som" was taken as a hint that at least some of the U.S. crewmen had arrived there.

Five days afterward, Laitin confirmed that tear gas was dropped, but he did so only after Miller had spoken of the incident in detail at a Singapore news conference.

Laitin said a pilot had reported seeing six Caucasians in the bow of the boat. The Pentagon spokesman did not mention any other American aboard the fishing boat and it appears that officials still felt some of the Mayaguez crew were back on Koh Tang.

Events moved toward a climax Wednesday, May 14, Washington time, as Ford and other senior officials met again and again in the White House Oval Office.

At 4:45 p.m., following an NSC session, nearly 60 hours after word of the capture was received, orders were issued to "begin the military operations for the recovery of the S.S. Mayaguez and crew."

Half an hour later, a Marine assault force of more than 250 men began flying from Utapao in 11 Air Force helicopters for the one-hour and 44-minute trip to Koh Tang.

Forty-nine minutes after the first chopper was airborne, the U.S. Pacific Command in Hawaii ordered the Coral Sea, then about 200 miles from the Cambodian mainland, to conduct "supporting air strikes on select targets near Kompong Som."

An hour and 26 minutes after the Marine lift started, Senate and House leaders of both political parties came to the Cabinet Room and Ford told them the operation was under way.

At 6:58 p.m., Washington time, part of the assault force from Thailand reached the U.S. destroyer Holt, which had arrived off Koh Tang eight hours earlier.

Seventy men were lowered from three helicopters to the deck of the Holt. The destroyer sailed alongside the Mayaguez and the boarding party clambered over the side onto the freighter. there was nobody there.

Nine minutes after the Marines started disembarking from hovering helicopters onto the Holt, but before the Mayaguez was secured, the Cambodian radio began broadcasting a 19-minute statement.

It said the Phnom Penh government would release the Mayaguez. There was no reference to the U.S. sailors.

Two minutes after the Cambodian broadcast began, eight helicopters carrying more than 190 Marines arrived at Koh Tang and were met with fire from what military officers later estimated at about 200 Cambodian troops.

Forty-nine minutes after the Cambodian statement ended, a translated version was delivered to Kissinger, who hurried it to Ford.

Ford, Kissinger and Schlesinger discussed the new development, but no move was made to halt any of the military operations.

Kissinger said it was decided to take "rather drastic communications means" of getting a message to the Cambodians.

White House spokesman Nessen an hour after the translated version was put in Kissinger's hands issued a "message to the Cambodian authorities."

It said: "As soon as you issue a statement that you are prepared to release the crew members unconditionally and immediately we will promptly cease military operations."

At the same time, Nessen announced the military actions ordered by the President.

On Koh Tang, the Marines were under heavy fire.

The eight helicopters were supposed to approach the island in three ways, but it now appears the Vehicle inspections deleted from budget

Auto safety lanes thing of the past

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

Motorists won't have to skirt those vehicle inspection lanes much longer.

Since no funds were included in the state's new budget, the program will end locally on June 30. It will, however, linger in other areas until Oct. 1 as officials seek to place civilian employes with other state agencies.

What will replace these inspections hasn't been decided. Several proposals are being considered, such as employes of the Department of Motor Vehicles checking tires and brakes and the new emission control stations being expanded to include safety checks.

Some program may be required to meet a federal requirement. Those states without a vehicle inspection program could face the loss of some federal highway funds.

The California Highway Patrol initiated the program in 1966 to upgrade safety equipment on vehicles, such as tires, brakes, lights and windshields. Officers later expanded the program to include mission control.

Two inspection teams had operated in the local area until recently when one team was disbanded as part of the phase out program. These included both uniformed officers and civilians.

With both teams operating, they could check up to 250 vehicles per day.

How effective has the program been?

"That's hard to say," declared Capt. W. C. Jones, area commander. "This has been a voluntary program where officers did not try to delay motorists who said they had an appointment."

But some serious mechanical defects have been spotted, and several stolen cars have been recovered, he added.

"We don't know how many traffic accidents were really caused by headlights out of adjustment, broken glass or defective brakes. We did, however, spot several vehicles where gasoline dripped from broken lines onto the engines. The motorists were most grateful."

But in some cases where a motorist knew he had a serious mechanical defect, he would drive around the inspection lanes.

The demise of the inspection program came earlier this year when Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. deleted $10 million from the CHP budget earmarked for its operation.

Regarding the federal mandate, Brown said he would discuss with federal officials the value of the program. "I don't think the program has proved its usefulness. The results in saving of lives or deterring actions have not been shown," he stated in a recent news conference.

"I'll make that argument if necessary to the federal government. If they will not accept it and they condition large amounts of highway funds on that program, obviously that will have to be reviewed."

Brown said waivers from the federal requirement are possible since 13 other states aren't in compliance with the federal program.

Two possible replacement programs were described by CHP Lt. Joe Deluca, assigned to the vehicle inspection program in Sacramento.

An Assembly bill pending in Sacramento would establish a pilot program where Department of Motor Vehicle employes would inspect tires and brakes on a half million vehicles during the next fiscal year.

Both items are included in the federal government's mandated safety inspection program. Such a pilot program may be expanded later to include inspections of other vehicle equipment.

The second program involves the Bureau of Automobile Repair which is opening an emission check station in Riverside County.

The pilot program, which begins next September, will be voluntary with registered motorists in Riverside County being asked to bring their vehicles in for emission checks.

But starting July 1, 1977, the program will be expanded into the five counties comprising the South Coast Air Basin. Emission inspections will then be required of all vehicles having an ownership transfer or the initial registration of out-of-state vehicles, said Deluca.

Officials are also discussing the possibility of expanding these stations to other vehicle inspections.

Should the state have to comply with the federal safety inspection program, officials would have two choices, he added.

One would be a state operated program where vehicles would be inspected by state employes. The second would be for private, licensed automotive dealers making inspections and charging the vehicle owners for the service.

Motorists might also be required to have these inspections made before permitted to register their vehicles, he said.

Valley shuts down for holiday

Government offices, schools and most businesses in the valley will be closed Monday to observe Memorial Day and several ceremonies are planned in the valley.

Rites honoring veterans in Pomona will be at 10 a.m. at the Pomona Cemetery and at 2 p.m. at Pomona Valley Mortuary, 575 N. Towne Ave., Pomona.

At 8:30 a.m. Monday, Charles P. Rowe American Legion Post 30 and Auxiliary will conduct a service at the Veterans Monument in Garfield Park, Pomona.

All patriotic organizations in the valley will participate in the ceremonies at the Pomona Cemetery which will be preceded by music by the Pomona Concert Band starting at 9:30 a.m.

The afternoon program at Pomona Valley Mortuary will be highlighted by a Congressional Medal of Honor recipient, Louis Van Iersel of Sierra Madre, raising an American flag.

Rep. John H. Rousselot, R-26th Dist., will be speaker at ceremonies in Oakdale Memorial Park in Glendora which begin at 10 a.m. Patriotic organizations and several valley high school bands will be involved in the ceremony at the cemetery and the parade preceding it.

In Ontario, Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., will participate in the Memorial Day program at Bellevue Cemetery at 10 a.m.

Valley post offices will be closed Monday and no residential or business area mail delivery will be made except for special delivery.

Collections will be on a holiday schedule which calls for afternoon collections on most street letter boxes.

No window services or firm deliveries will be made to boxholders on the holiday. In Pomona, the lobby of the main office, 580 W. Monterey St., and the Central District station, 300 S. Park Ave., Pomona, will be open for access to stamp vending machines and lock boxes.

Self-service postal centers located at Indian Hill Village Shopping Center and at Cal Poly campus will be available to the public.

An academic holiday is scheduled at all public schools and all colleges except at the Claremont Colleges where classes will be held but the business offices will be closed.

West End Omnitrans buses will not run on Monday in the West End communities.

Refuse collections will be postponed one day in all valley cities except Upland. Upland will attempt to collect both Monday's and Tuesday's assigned routes on Tuesday and maintain their regular refuse collection schedule the remainder of the week.

All other cities will collect refuse one day later than scheduled, with Friday's route being completed on Saturday.

City Council meetings scheduled on Monday in Pomona and San Dimas will be held on Tuesday.

Phillips Mansion restoration tops council's agenda

Pomona City Council Tuesday is expected to consider approval of grant applications for the restoration of the old Phillips Mansion and La Casa Primera de Rancho San Jose in Pomona.

If approved, the grant applications, totalling some $45,000, would be made to the State Department of Parks and Recreation, Historical Preservation Section.

If the $45,000 in state funds are received, matching local funds must then be approved for a total of $90,000 for restoration work.

Other agenda items for the 8 p.m. meeting, which was shifted from Monday to Tuesday due to the Memorial Day holiday, include council consideration of a request to the Southern California Association of Governments for $15,338 for bikeways planning.

Water safety course

The class, open only to persons who have completed a senior lifesaving course, will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 9 p.m. for a period of four weeks.

The class will be taught by Candy Lieberman.

Cost is $1 for YMCA members and $6 for non-members.

For information, persons may call 623-6433.

Bandit hits donut shop

A lone gunman robbed Winchell's Donut House at 773 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Pomona, Friday evening of an undetermined amount of cash.

Police said the suspect entered the store, confronted an employe with a handgun and demanded all the currency from store's cash register. After taking the money he fled on foot.

The man was described as Mexican-American about 20 to 23, 5 feet 8, 150 pounds, wearing a beanie, green jacket and jeans.

Northwest Chino property use conference

Future use of property northwest of Chino will be discussed at a public meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the E. J. Marshall School.

The area involved is bounded between the Chino city limits and Los Angeles County line and Phillips Boulevard and Benson Avenue.

Officials of Chino's Community Development Department called the meeting to review the general plan for that area with property owners to determine if any changes are necessary.

The area is presently zoned for agriculture use, but both the city and county master plans designate it for future residential developments.

"We want to update the master plan where necessary to have the development compatible with the property owners wishes," said Gale Carr, Chino's planning director.

Both city and county planning officials will attend the program to be held in the school's multipurpose room.

School's hiring practices to be aired Tuesday

James Horton, consultant to the state's Fair Employment Practice Commission, will make an oral report on the commission's one-year investigation of hiring practices in Pomona's public schools at a 7:30 p.m. school board meeting Tuesday.

Members of the school board and community groups which initiated the investigation have had copies of the commission's report for three weeks.

It includes 24 recommendations to improve district hiring patterns. These recommendations were published in the Progress-Bulletin May 10.

It suggests that the investigation remain open "until such time as the district demonstrates substantial improvement in female and minority utilization."

The investigation was requested in March of 1974 by the Community Education Advisory Council and the Pomona Valley Black Coalition.

At the same time, nine Pomona area residents wrote letters requesting commission intervention into district hiring practices, and a letter to Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) asking that the district adopt and implement an "acceptable" affirmative action program was forwarded to the commission.

At the same meeting, the school board will be asked to approve a bus-plane-train trip to San Diego for 18 children in the preschool program at Kellogg Elementary School and eight adults on June 4.

Voters poised for override issue

Some 28,196 registered voters Tuesday will decide whether to give more money to the Pomona Unified School District for 1975-76 and 1976-77.

In its ballot measure, the school district is asking for a 94 cent increase per $100 of assessed valuation in its general purpose tax rate.

If approved, it would bring in $1.9 million a year over the two-year period. But at the same time, the owner of a $20,000 home would have $47 a year added to his tax bill.

The school proposal is being actively supported by Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) and the Pomona PTA Council. Teachers are working through students and with parents urging a "yes" vote Tuesday. PTA members are contacting voters urging support.

The measure has strong support from Citizens United For Our Unified Schools, headed by Roy O. Day.

In spite of the track record or only three voter approvals of 12 district requests for money since 1956 — the last defeats as recent as last November — supporters express strong confidence the override will be approved.

There is low key and rather quiet opposition to the measure from a 40-member community group called Guardians of Citizens Tax Dollars, headed by Ed Harrison.

Harrison is out of town this week and couldn't be reached for comment. However, at a public forum he did present the views of his group, claiming that "more money will not buy better education."

But school officials strongly plead for approval of the measure.

"The need is very real," said school board President Don Donnelly. "I shudder to think where our society would be without a total educational system which is required by law for our young people.

"I assure you that without voter support Tuesday our educational system will be severely curtailed, and the cutbacks that will have to be made will devastate the educational opportunities for students in the district."

For skeptics who feel that "all is wrong and nothing is right" Donnelly said "Come with me just one day and visit schools in which so many beautiful things are happening."

He said he is optimistic because "most people will see the need and react as most Americans have when faced with the alternatives that are before us" because "a sound America is dependent on a sound educational system." Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz is quick to point out that if the override fails, cuts made by the school board last February in order to balance the 1975-76 budget will be carried out eliminating high school team sports, remedial reading, 60 elective classes in the junior highs and high schools, lowering library and counseling services, reducing services provided by nurses, psychologists and speech therapists, and closing two small elementary schools.

"The problem of maintaining acceptable standards of discipline on the campuses is compounded when administrative, teaching and support personnel is reduced," said Wentz.

The school board has committed itself to reinstating all services and programs if voters approve the tax increase, which would raise the per pupil revenue limit from $983.21 this year to $1,064.53 next year.

Wentz notes that over the past two years the school district's tax rate has dropped $1.61 per $100 of assessed valuation due to Senate Bill 90.

Day sees failure of the override and its accompanying loss of team sports and music programs as "a severe blow to the educational program."

"Let's face it," said Day, "Many of our young people stay in school because of athletic activities. For many of them the prospects of receiving athletic scholarships are just about the most important things in life. We can't deprive them of this opportunity.

"Our youngsters only go through school one time and it would be a disaster to carve their educational opportunities to the bone and expect them to fare as well as others in the future."

The Pomona Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has unanimously endorsed the override, Chamber President Robert Lewis announced Friday.

And at a general membership meeting recently, the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association unanimously endorsed the measure.

Money and schools

Once again the Pomona Unified School District is asking the taxpayers for money.

As watchdogs on the spending of public money, the Progress-Bulletin asks:

Would more money improve our schools? and

Can district taxpayers afford it?

The answer to both questions, we feel, is no.

It has been pretty well proven that no amount of money can buy a good educational system. A good educational system is built from the ground up on a foundation of community support nourished by the conviction that opportunities are dispensed fairly, both to students and employes.

This conviction seems to be lacking in Pomona's schools.

Taxpayers in the district largely are low-income families, businesses struggling to survive in an inflation-recession climate, ethnic minority families and the aged.

Primary exceptions are residents of North Diamond Bar which the district serves.

These same taxpayers are fighting one of the highest unemployment rates in the nation, said by elected officials to be at about 12 per cent. A high percentage of them are on welfare.

And, already they are burdened with a combined tax rate on their property of $13.2218 per $100 of assessed valuation. This rate includes what residents of Pomona pay to the city, county, schools, flood control district, sanitation district and Metropolitan Water District.

Of this combined total rate, $4.5185 now is going to finance the Pomona Unified School District.

In its Tuesday ballot issue, the district is asking taxpayers to grant a 94 cent per $100 of assessed valuation increase in that tax.

If voters approve the measure, the tax rate for the district would be increased to around $5.4584 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Sure, we know it costs money to run a school system and to pay good salaries. But the quality of education is not always measured by the quantity of money spent on it.

To be successful, a school district must have community support. Parents of all colors want their children to have discipline, an opportunity to develop to their highest potential, and, above, all, be able to go to school safely. Schools are not all that safe these days, although we must admit that some improvement has been made in recent years.

When parents have confidence in their school system they will support it with their dollars.

As for the Progress-Bulletin's recommendation on the override election, this newspaper has been concerned with the proposed cuts in school program, with the safety of students, the increase in taxes, and the economic conditions which have given the nation its worst depression since the 1930's.

We would like to be in a position to state that the school district merits an increase in the tax rate, but for reasons primarily economic we can find no compelling reason to endorse the override.

We are of the opinion that the school board has not exhausted alternatives (merging schools with decreasing enrollments, increasing class size if necessary, and reducing administrative costs) as a means of retaining existing programs without the necessity of an increase in taxes.

Dominoes or cards?

The "domino theory" has been given new credence by the recent events in Southeast Asia. First Cambodia, then South Vietnam. Will Laos and Thailand be the next to fall? Then Burma, Malaysia, South Korea, the Philippines?

According to the theory, there is an inevitability to the process. If one domino is permitted to tumble, the others, standing in line, will collapse in turn.

The theory at least has the virtue of being easily and vividly pictured — and many editorial cartoonists have done just that — and therein may lie its subtle danger.

If an image is what we need, it would be more accurate and useful to admit that what we attempted to prop up in Indochina at such great cost was not a row of solid dominoes but a flimsy house of cards. Its collapse need not have adverse repercussions elsewhere — unless, of course, the other governments we fear will be next are of similarly insubstantial construction.

And that, unfortunately, may be precisely the problem.

Civil service abuses

WASHINGTON — The civil service system, which is supposed to keep politics out of the working level of government, is breaking down.

The commissioners, who are entrusted to police the system, have abused it themselves. They have helped to plant political favorites in civil service jobs. They have failed to stop discrimination against deserving federal servants. This has led to lower morale and lower productivity.

And we have the documents to prove it, documents that have been suppressed by the Civil Service Commission.

It isn't popular to defend the bureaucrats, those unsung soldiers of the swivel chair. More often damned than praised by the citizens they serve, the bureaucrats man the cumbersome machinery of government.

They are disparaged by the likes of George Wallace as "pointy-headed bureaucrats." He draws his heartiest cheers when he denounces the bumblers and fumblers in Washington.

We have exposed more than our share of bad bureaucrats, but we must correct Wallace's rhetoric. We have found that the U.S. government, in fact, has the world's finest work force.

To make it so, President Chester Arthur as his claim to history established the civil service system in 1883. Ever since, even the strongest of presidents have found themselves only small dogs wagged by a giant bureaucratic tail.

Elections are held, opposite political parties take power, administrative heads come and go. But the bureaucrats remain to guide each new leader through the marble maze.

Deep in the granite and sandstone compounds of government, the bureaucrats are engaged in hundreds of battles — battles against crime and congestion, disease and drudgery, hatred and hunger, poverty and pollution. Some are working on the conquest of space; others would be content to conquer the mundane fruit fly. They can produce answers on almost anything, from the habits of the hagfish to the habitat of the hackmatack.

Their chief protector is supposed to be Civil Service Commission Chairman Robert Hampton, who is charged with keeping the federal bureaucracy free of the spoils systems. But documents, never intended to be read outside the commission, show he had barely settled down at his desk before he became involved in political referrals.

He received a memo from a presidential aide shortly after Richard Nixon moved into the White House in 1969. Citing "very special circumstances," the aide asked Hampton's help in finding a Whittier, Calif., woman a job.

The credentials she listed in her application were strictly political. Not only did she come from Nixon's home town, but she had worked in all his political campaigns since 1946. During the 1968 presidential race, she served under Edward Nixon in the campaign mail room. She gave Donald Nixon as a reference.

Without hesitation, Hampton ignored the regulations he is supposed to enforce and forwarded her resume to the Health, Education and Welfare Department. His private files show he has intervened in dozens of other cases.

Jayne Spain, the vice chairman, has also played politics on the side. She wrote to Frederick Malek on March 27, 1973, when he was Nixon's deputy budget director and the architect of an undercover campaign to politicize the bureaucracy.

In her memo to Malek, she recommended a man who had "worked very hard for (Carl) Curtis and (Roman) Hruska," Nebraska's two stodgy Senators, both proper Republicans. Jayne Spain, too, has pulled political strings in other cases.

What is worse, the commission has developed a ho-hum attitude toward civil service abuses. Its investigators have found widespread discrimination, favoritism and cronyism throughout the federal government. But the commission merely stamps the reports confidential and locks them up.

The commission goes through the routine of notifying the offending agency, but seldom is there any follow-up to find out whether the abuses have been corrected. Here are a few random samples from the confidential files:

— At the Federal Communications Commission, the investigators found that sloppy management was causing "a high loss rate of attorneys, excessive cost to the agency and poor morale in the professional staff with probable adverse effect on productivity."

— The Selective Service System, now operating on a standby basis, was criticized for "excessive use of military officers in key positions."

—At the Renegotiation Board, the investigators discovered that the government negotiators were drawn largely from the industries with which they negotiate. Such hiring sources, said the report, "tends to restrict the intake of Negroes and women into line professional jobs."

— In the southwest region of the Immigration Service, some old racial canards were turned up. "The simple fact is that they, Negroes, do not want a general service type job with government," wrote one local supervisor, betraying his racial prejudice. "They prefer to work in the blue-collar positions."

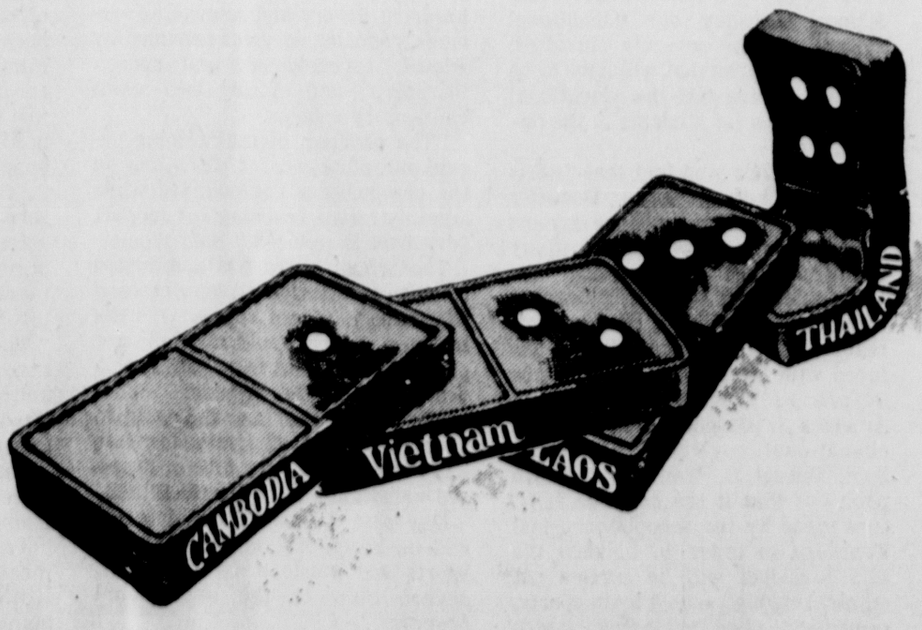

— At Lompoc prison in California, the investigators discovered that "employment of Spanish-surnamed minorities is the area that is in need of most improvement." Citing the large number of inmates of Hispanic origin, the investigators strongly suggested: "The goals of correctional custody and public policy might be better met with a more positive approach to recruitment of Spanish-surnamed employes."

— In Boston, the Civil Service team found the local drug enforcement office had a "complete absence of female and minority investigators." There were "very few efforts toward recruiting women," the report charged.

— The National Credit Union Administration was hit for promoting people without allowing competition for the job. Women employes were concentrated "in the lower grade levels," the report stated.

The litany could go on but the point is clear. These abuses were uncovered, routinely noted and then locked in a file drawer. On Capitol Hill, Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., is taking steps to stop the deterioriation of the civil service system.

Footnote: A Civil Service spokesman said there was nothing illegal or improper about the referrals made by Hampton and Spain. In the "post-Watergate" atmosphere, however, they have issued new rules which forbid any referrals, he said. The commission is concerned about the abuses it turns up, a high-level CSC official told us, but simply does not have the power or resources to always follow through.

Just in jest

Article 1, Section 1 of the Amendments to the United States Constitution states in part: — "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." — But what Congress had ordained smart men can put asunder. So one should never underestimate the power of the anti-religion crusaders. Already they have succeeded in getting prayers out of our schools.

They're now working, with some success, at getting religion broadcasts off the air. And mark my words, the next thing we know they will probably succeed in stopping the ringing of church bells on Sunday. This on the grounds that such bell ringing constitutes an invasion of the privacy of Sunday golfers who are thereby subjected to cruel and unusual guilt feelings because they aren't in church.

In today's world there is nothing either right or wrong, it's the lawmakers' thinking that makes it so. Which, to say the least, can be a bit confusing where the average citizen is concerned, since seldom are lawmakers in agreement as to what constitutes a logical answer to any given problem.

Take the question of whether or not smoking should be allowed in public places as a typical example. — Up in Sacramento our legislators have passed a bill which allows smoking on high school campuses; but down in Los Angeles the City Councilmen have passed an ordinance which bans smoking in public facilities. — The logic that prompted two such diametrically opposed rulings somehow eludes me; but then I suppose we have to have such legislation, if for no other reason than to keep our lawyers and our judges busy arguing and ruling on the constitutionality of such laws.

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions. It costs you nothing. Write to Heartline, 8514 North Main St., Dayton, Ohio, 45415.

Heartline: I am 71 and drawing social security. My wife will soon be 63. If she starts drawing from my account at her present age, what per cent will she receive? M. A.

Answer: At age 63, the wife is entitled to 41.7% of the amount you are now drawing.

Heartline: My husband just died of cancer. We were married 37 years. How can I go on alone? We had such a wonderful life together. J. D.

Answer: No one is alone. You have 37 years of wonderful memories, a God who cares, and Heartline who will help when we can.

Heartline: I am planning to remarry. I am 68 years old. Is it necessary to have my name changed on my social security card? N. O.

Answer: It would be advisable to do so. It could possibly save you some problems later on.

Heartline: What year did the farmers come under social security? Y. G.

Answer: Farmers were covered by social security in 1955.

Heartline: What is this I hear about a Pen-Pal from my hometown? A. J.

Answer: We now have a pen-pal club in which we can find you a pen-pal in over 100 cities in America. If you want to write to a friend, drop us a line and we will do the rest.

Heartline: My mother has never worked under Social Security. Does she have to apply for a Social Security card for tax exemption purposes? F. T.

Answer: A claimed dependent is not required to have a Social Security number unless he or she receives taxable income from investment such as interest on savings accounts or dividends from stock. However, in the case of married persons filing jointly or separately the Social Security numbers of both the husband and wife should be shown on the return.

Heartline: I lost my National Service Life Insurance policy which I have carried since World War II. Can I get a copy from the Veterans Administration? G. A.

Answer: Yes. Request a copy from the VA insurance center where you pay your premiums. If you had a paid-up policy, direct your request to the insurance center in Philadelphia.

Heartline: My mother was born in 1910 and my father in 1913. Why does Social Security say that to be insured under Social Security, they need 24 quarters or six years. I thought that the year you were born determined how many quarters you needed to be insured. T. W.

Answer: You are right, however, for the years 1910, 1911, 1912, and 1913, the years and quarters are the same . . . 24 quarters or six years.

Answer: Only if he is 100 per cent permanently and totally disabled from service-connected conditions.

Ann Landers

Crying at 21 embarrassing

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 21-year-old male. My problem, Ann, is that when I get the least little bit upset I cry. It's very embarrassing because I've cried in front of people whose respect and esteem mean a lot to me. I've done this all my life and it's beginning to knock my ego to pieces.

I've never heard of a 21-year-old male who cried so much. Why am I so different? What can I do about it? — Ashamed Of Myself

Dear A.O.M.: You may not be as different as you think. Many males cry, but they do it privately. And crying isn't such a bad thing. Weepers aren't necessarily losers. It can be a healthy release for anxiety and frustration.

Since the real problem is your fear of ridicule, my advice is to get off by yourself when you feel the tears coming on. If you've been a weeper all your life, chances for changing this pattern are slim. (P.S. A note of consolation: Tears are better than bottled rage which can cause ulcers.)

Dear Ann Landers: I wonder how many wives among your readers have my problem. I am accused by my husband of being frigid, cold and unresponsive. Why doesn't he take inventory and ask himself such questions as these: "When did I last shower, use a deodorant or brush my teeth? Am I sober? Does my breath reek of beer or booze?"

I'm basically an affectionate person. When we married, nearly 20 years ago, we were very much in love. Shortly after our honeymoon. I became disenchanted. My husband's lack of personal hygiene was something I couldn't deal with. I hinted at first. Nothing changed. Then I came right out and told him. Still nothing changed.

This man is a college graduate. He holds an executive position with a well-known firm, is considered charming and intelligent — until he drinks too much, which is becoming more frequent. Our sex life is almost nil because of his lack of bodily cleanliness and excessive drinking.

Please print this letter, Ann. It's too late to help our marriage, but perhaps it will help someone else's. — Just Sad

Dear Sad: When people disregard personal hygiene to the point that they become offensive, it is often something beyond "carelessness." It's mental illness.

I've received similar letters from men who have the same complaints about their wives. I hope your letter will move those who need it to seek outside help.

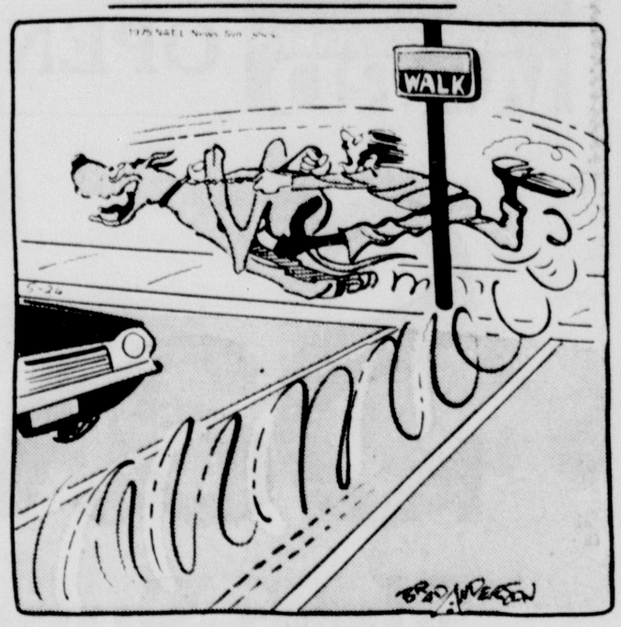

Dear Ann: I think your advice to "Scarred Forever," (she found a bunch of dirty pictures among her dead father's belongings), was wrong. You said, "His ability to lead two completely different lives is a symptom of a severe personality disorder."

I am a bisexual who has a terrific marriage. But every month or so I like the "companionship" of another guy. I've been carrying on like this for 9 of the 11 years of our marriage. My wife would divorce me if she found out. Of course, I'd never leave dirty pictures lying around, but I don't believe I have a "severe personality disorder." It's just that my second life provides me with a necessary release.

You owe people like me a retraction. I'll accept the label "rat" but I resent being told I'm not normal. — Happy In Southern California

Dear Happy: I wouldn't call you a rat. I'd just say you are the unfortunate victim of a severe personality disorder.

Stepparent: twighlight zone

They're called Stepparents.

They arrived on the parental scene too late for the beginning of your life and too early for the end of it.

It's a blind date between a child whose "real father" was a cross between John Wayne and Big Bird ("real mother" a composite of Ann-Margret and the Flying Nun) and a fledging parent who visualized a grate ful Cinderella. (Or Oliver).

It's an instant do-it-yourself parent kit stocked with hostility, bitterness, compromise, unsureness, jealousy, pride, love and determination.

On a bad day it's slammed doors, whispers on the telephone, eyeball-to-eyeball confronation and tearful "You're not my mother!" (Father!)

On a good day it's a gentle arm around your shoulder, a clumsy compliment, eyes that say I understand, and shared laughter that you thought would never come again.

All the ways of saying "I love you" for natural parents don't work for the stepparent.

"What time are you coming home?"

"Take your coat."

"No, you cannot go down the Ohio River on a raft."

"Go to bed. It's late."

It's a war and that's an invasion . . . a crossing of the parent boundary line by a stepparent.

They constitute one of the largest unorganized groups in this country. They have no special interest groups or lobbyists working for them. They hold no regular meetings, nor do they pay dues. They conduct no bake sales and carry no membership cards in their billfolds. That alone should make them unique.

Heaven forbid that anyone think I am suggesting a special day to honor stepparents. On the contrary, I would like to suggest we do away with the word altogether. (Along with senior citizen, gross, burssels sprouts and All Sales Final!)

Parenthood is not necessarily a side effect from giving birth. Some are good at it and some are lousy. Real parenthood is the one who is there to care.

From the middle of May to the middle of June, we honor Mothers and Fathers. I have a stepparent. It's either my mother or my father. I can't remember anymore which one it is.

Dr. Miller

Moles have wide variety of diet

DEAR DR. MILLER: Do young moles eat anything besides dirt and earthworms? — W. A.

DEAR W.A.: While moles munch a bit of dirt along with earthworms, they're not really partial to earth as an entree. They do eat a variety of other food, ranging from dead birds and bits of fresh meat to beetle and moth larvae and a wide variety of vegetables ranging from carrots and potatoes to iris bulbs. They eat frequently in large amounts, since their high rate of metabolism consumes calories at a prodigious rate.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When our cat, V-8, was a year old he started spraying around the house. He had a couple of favorite spots, but it took us a while before we realized what was happening. When we did, we took him in and had him put in neutral, permanently. This was supposed to stop the spraying. Well, it did, for a year. Now he's started again. He has no gears left we can strip. The doctor assures us he's still in neutral. If spraying is sexual behavior and he isn't sexual any more, how come he is spraying? — V.L.

DEAR V.L.: When the male cat is neutered before coming into full "bloom," he seldom begins spraying (urine marking) at all. Most entire (not neutered) male cats will eventually develop this marking technique even inside the home. Once the male has established a habit of spraying, neutering is less likely to be effective in breaking it. This is one of the big advantages in neutering the male before the pattern is established. Seven or eight months is generally the favored age for surgery. When a neutered male suddenly starts spraying after an "accident"-free interval of many months or years, it's usually due to a urinary tract infection and-or anxiety and frustration within his home environment.

Frustration may be brought about by a competing pet within the home (or next door), by disturbing sounds (ranging from hard rock stereo to family squabbles), or by other less obvious stress factors. If the cat's anxiety can be relieved and, at the same time, his set marking stations thoroughly cleaned up so there is no remaining scent to stimulate new spraying, the problem can usually be solved.

Dr. Lamb

Blood test for sugar level

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am writing you because I would like to know about the diabetic blood test. I am a diabetic and always have had blood drawn from my arm for the test.

My doctor retired and I went to a new doctor. He took the test from blood from my finger. Dr. Lamb, I would like to know if he got enough blood to really tell if the diabetes existed or not. If you say it is OK to make a test that way I will be satisfied, but I have doubts about the way he did it.

DEAR READER — There are several ways of measuring the level of blood glucose. Any of these are fine if the normal values for that procedure are established for that laboratory. Your doctor used a micro or capillary method which is fine for usual follow-up of a diabetic.

I'd like to take this opportunity to point out that the use of oral diabetes drugs is under a real cloud. Several years ago a cooperative study by specialists from several universities suggested that they were of doubtful value and noted a higher incidence of heart attacks in patients taking them.

Recently these findings were independently evaluated by the Biometric Society and the findings published in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA). Their analysis confirmed the earlier findings of the study.

In an editorial on the subject in the JAMA after the Biometric Society analysis, Dr. Thomas Chalmers, president of Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York, states, "the probability that oral hypoglycemic agents cause premature deaths from cardiovascular disease remains valid." He suggested that "a majority of the patients on oral drugs could get along with mild dietary restrictions."

The studies linking oral hypoglycemic medicines to an increased rate of heart attacks was also confirmed by the Mayo Clinic. In view of these developments, anyone taking these medicines should check with his doctor to see if the medicines should be continued or not.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have just moved from another state and must seek out a new doctor. The question is what kind? I have had hot flashes for 15 years, and they are as bad now as any of the worst times in those 15 years.

Because of low energy and a tendency toward low blood pressure, I'm on a small amount of thyroid. With or without medication. I'm told I still have normal metabolism. I'm 55 and I'm told I'm through the menopause.

DEAR READER — Everyone needs a family doctor. One is not always easy to come by. If you have a physician in your community doing family practice, start with him. In many places the specialist in internal medicine really functions as the family physician, and that is all right, too.

A family physician can refer you to specialists as you need them, if the occasion arises. You are not going to get much help out of a gynecologist if you happen to have an auto accident or get the flu. He is too busy with gynecology problems to deal with the vast array of other problems people often have.

Contact your county medical society and get their recommendations for doctors in your community.

Most popular plastic surgery

Q. "Isn't breast enlargement the most popular plastic surgery in Tokyo now?"

A. It's still No. 2. The westernization of the eyelids is No. 1.

Q. "HOW LONG have those stamp collectors known as philatelists been operating?"

A. Since 1840, I imagine. That's when England issued the world's first postage stamp, the renowned Penny Black.

Q. "HOW OLD was Johnny Miller when he first learned how to play golf?"

A. Let's say age 5. At least, that's how old he was when his father draped a piece of canvas across the family's basement in San Francisco to teach Johnny how to swing at a golf ball.

INVESTMENTS

Note it stated in print by a high federal official that "husbands who discuss financial investments with their wives tend to be richer than the husbands who don't." Naturally, dum dum. Husbands who discuss financial investments with anyone tend to be richard than husbands who don't. If you don't have any financial investments to discuss, you're none too likely to discuss them, what?

WAS NONE OTHER than old Bob Ripley who reported there are 10 ways to spell the sound "R;; in English, 33 ways to spell the sound "E," 17 ways to spell the sound "V," 36 ways to spell the sound "I," and 17 ways to spell the sound "S."

GAMBLER

Scholars who have made a study of the matter contend one out of every 34 citizens is a compulsive gambler.

ON HIS INCOME TAX return, world champion poker player Amarillo Slim Preston lists his occupation as "professional pool player," I'm told.

CONSIDER elephants. When two bulls fight each other, it's usually for position in the herd. When two cows fight each other, it's usually over some bull. Or so an elephant expert says.

AM ASKED why cold cream was so named. That's widely known. Because the water in it evaporated when applied to the skin, thus creating a cool sensation. World's first cold cream, concocted by that Greek physician Galen about A.D. 150, consisted of olive oil, bee's wax and as much water as the mixture would hold.

Barbs

Early to bed and early to rise means the dog wants out at 2 a.m.

Take enough long lunch hours and you'll have the whole day to yourself.

These days, the only way we get steak is rarely.

Smoking is a disgusting habit, and we'll be able to finish our editorial about it after we run out for a pack of smokes.

Jacoby's bridge

Poor play sinks good bidding

By Oswald & James Jacoby

"Nice three-diamond bid, partner," said South. "We showed a 50-point profit due to my honors and they would have made three clubs."

"A very nice bid," replied North. "Too bad you didn't take the trouble to make three diamonds."

East had taken one club and shifted to the jack of hearts. South had taken his ace, played out five rounds of trumps, led a heart to dummy's king and a spade to his own king. West had produced the ace and South was held to eight tricks.

South should have made the contract. He could be certain that East didn't hold the ace of spades. He had dealt and passed and shown up with a long club suit headed by the ace-king.

There is no point playing a man for a card he can't have so it was up to South to try for an end play. Furthermore, since West almost surely held at least five hearts all that was necessary was to find a 2-2 trump break.

South should win the first heart in dummy and ruff a club. Then a trump to the nine, ruff the last club, and cash ace of trumps.

Both opponents will follow. Now South cashes ace of hearts, throws West in with the third heart and smiles happily.

Foyt seeks fourth Indy 500 win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Anthony Joseph Foyt is a crusty, irascible 40-year-old who thinks this last Sunday in May belongs to him by devine right.

So do a couple of hundred thousand auto racing fans who will jam the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to watch him try for what nobody else in the history of the Indy 500 has ever achieved—a fourth victory.

Of course, there are a lot of people who think the wily Texan doesn't wear a halo, that inevitable victory isn't his.

Among them are the other 32 drivers who, like Foyt, enjoy snuggling down into their lowslung beauties and whipping around this old brickyard at maybe 190 miles an hour or so.

They are veterans like Al and Bobby Unser, Mario Andretti, Lloyd Ruby, Billy Vukovich, Gordon Johncock and Johnny Rutherford, and rookies like Sheldon Kinser, Larry McCoy, Bill Puterbaugh and Eldon Rasmussen.

But ol' A.J., well, he's run this race 17 times before, more than any of those 32 others. And in those 17 races he's finished first three times, more than any of those 32 others. Louis Meyer, Mauri Rose and the late Wilbur Shaw were the only other drivers to chalk up a triple—and Meyer and Rose don't drive race cars any more.

If that wasn't enough of an edge, Foyt also has a head start. He's starting on the inside of the front row, the pole position, for the fourth time in his career as he guns for the magic fourth and his first victory here since 1967.

A.J. blew everybody out two weeks ago on the first day of qualifying when he rammed his Coyte-Foyt four times around the 2½-mile asphalt track at an average speed of 193.976 miles an hour. His closest challenger was Johncock, more than two miles an hour slower.

So what?

"Starting first means nothing. Finishing first means everything," Foyt snapped after his qualification run.

History bears him out. He was sevnth, fifth and fourth at the start of what were to become his three triumphs. In his three pole-position starts, he finished eighth once and 15th twice. Similarly, Bobby Unser started first in 1972 and wound up 30th. The next year, Rutherford was on pole and came in ninth.

Conversely, Rutherford was buried in 25th place in the 33car starting grid a year ago and ended up as the winner. Johncock had 10 other cars ahead of his before he took the checkered flag in 1973.

Only eight times since the Indy became a 500-mile classic in 1911 has the man on the pole been the man to win it, the most recent being Al Unser in 1970.

Still, with Foyt in the race, you can throw out the history books. A friendly poll of drivers, mechanics and Speedway officials has listed him as the 2-1 favorite to achieve his unprecedented dream.

Ruby, who has gained the reputation as a hard-luck driver since he's never finished higher than third in his 15 previous Indy starts, is second at 3-1 and Bobby Unser, on the outside of the three-car front row (Johncock's in the middle) is rated third at 4-1 in this, his 13th Indy.

AWAY UP THERE

Batting practice no help to Halos

Lee posted his second consecutive shutout with a five-hitter as the Red Sox whipped the Angels 6-0 on three-run homers by Rico Petrocelli and Rick Burleson.

"I heard they got thrown out of the lobby for making obscene gestures with fungo bats," Lee said kiddingly.

A couple of days ago, Lee reiterated a previous comment that the Angels "could take batting practice in a hotel lobby without damaging a chandelier."

Williams decided to go along with the gag. He told his players to report to the lobby at noon instead of the ballpark. With plastic bats and balls, Williams pitched to Winston Llenas before hotel security officers decided the routine was too much.

"Seriously, though, I think what Williams did was good for baseball," Lee said. "It was a good idea, a lot of fun."

Lee and Mickey Rivers exchanged heated words after the California outfielder walked in the eighth inning. Teammates restrained the two players.

"It was my fault and I apologized to Rivers," Lee said. "Dick Williams was playing the game and, behind 6-0, had his players taking in the late innings. Rivers was taking good pitches and it got me mad when he walked. Actually, he was just trying to get on base, doing his job."

Lee boosted his record to 6-4 while becoming the seventh consecutive Boston pitcher to go the route on the current home stand.

Miracle Warriors can wrap-up title

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Golden State Warriors, written off as non-playoff material prior to the 1974-75 National Basketball Association season, can complete their miracle run to the title today with a fourth straight victory over the bewildered Washington Bullets.

The Warriors, a rag-tag collection of little-known players except for superstar Rick Barry, have beaten the Bullets 101-95, 92-91 and 109-101 in the first three games of the nationally televised best-of-seven series.

If they pin a fourth consecutive defeat on Washington, they would join select NBA company. Only two other teams in league history have scored 40 sweeps in championship competition. They were the Boston Celtics over the Minneapolis Lakers in 1959 and the Milwaukee Bucks over the Baltimore Bullets in 1971.

"I'm convinced we can beat them again, I'm convinced we can do it in four games," said Golden State's Keith Wilkes, the NBA's Rookie of the Year. "But we can't take them lightly."

Graham, Quisenberry star

Leopards win Area One title

PORTLAND — Dan Graham's big bat and the strong right arm of Dan Quisenberry led La Verne College to its second straight NAIA Area One baseball title Saturday.

Needing only one win, the Leopards (30-17-1) were sidetracked by Linfield College, 11-7, in the first game despite three home runs by Graham. This necessitated another game.

But Dan Quisenberry (16-6), who has become an ironman for coach Ben Hines, pitched the Leos to the championship, 9-3, in the second contest.

Quisenberry who pitched in four of the five District games last week, worked in two of the four area games. Four of his appearances in the playoffs including both area contests have been route-going performances.

Graham, who went 13-for-21 with 14 runs batted in and 10 scored in the district, had six hits in eight at-bats in Saturday's Area games. The husky third baseman slammed four more home runs to give him a total of 10 in the playoffs and 16 for the year. He batted eight runs and scored five to give him a total of 15 in the Area games and 29 in the playoffs to date.

"Quisenberry and Graham again put together a real series and did a super job," exclaimed a happy coach Ben Hines. "Quis threw ground ball outs and the infield sucked them up. Graham just crushed the ball. He got hot at the right time. But this is true of the whole ball club. The whole club played good ball at the right time."

Graham, Quisenberry and Nick Leyva all were named to the All Area first team. Leyva, the Leo shortstop for four years, is a repeat honoree from last year.

La Verne is slated to meet the Area Seven winner Saturday at 5:30 p.m. in the second day of the national tournament at St. Joseph, Mo. The Leos are due to arrive at Ontario International Airport on Continental Flight 305 at 5:02 p.m. this afternoon.

La Verne and Linfield were tied 1-1 and 4-4 in Saturday's first game. But Linfield knocked out starter Tim Kelly (8-8) in a five-run sixth inning with a three-run homer by Linfield catcher Barney McIntyre the big blow.

Steve Iles replaced Kelly and went the rest of the way giving up two more Linfield runs in the eighth.

La Verne had scored in the third on a walk to Art Sanchez, Jim Sherman's sacifice and rich Fielder's RBI single. In the fifth inning, Fielder singled. After Paul Fleming and Leyva flied out, Graham smashed his first homer of the day. Geoff Zimmerman replaced starter Jim Maitman for Linfield. Ralph Valadez singled and, while Mike Pagnotta was drawing a walk, advanced to third on two wild pitches. Jimmy Lentine, who had five hits in the two games, singled him in.

Graham's second home run made it 9-4 in the seventh. In the ninth, Leyva singled and scored on Graham's third roundtripper.

Zimmerman tried to come back and pitch the second game just as Linfield's Dick Cahill had done a year ago. But the Leos weren't to be denied.

Fleming homered in the third for a 1-0 lead. Graham singled and Pagnotta homered to make it 3-0 in the fourth inning. the Leopards wrapped it up with a five-run fifth.

Fleming walked with one out. Leyva singled and Graham slammed his fourth home run of the day. Singles by Valadez, Pagnotta and Lentine brought in another run and the fifth scored on Sanchez' infield out.

Linfield scored all its runs in the last of the fifth on four hits including doubles by Tom Lopez and Bob Edwards.

Cards stifle Dodgers, 6-2

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Keith Hernandez hit his first major league homer, a two-run blow in the seventh inning, and snapped a 1-1 tie to help the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday night.

The Cardinals' Lynn McGlothen, 4-4, pitched hitless ball for five innings before Dodger rookie Ivan Dejesus led off the sixth with a double to the center field wall.

Dejesus eventually scored on a wild pitch that tied the game 1-1 before the Cardinals rallied in the seventh on Hernandez' big hit.

The Dodgers came within a run of St. Louis in their half of the seventh on Ron Cey's homer. But the Cardinals padded their lead in the eighth on Ken Reitz' two-run single and added another run in the ninth on Lou Brock's RBI hit.

McGlothen allowed just four hits before needing last-out relief help from Al Hrabosky, who came into the game after the Cardinal starter walked a batter and gave up a single in the ninth.

Pepperdine ousts Troy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Upstart Pepperdine scored four runs in the top of the ninth inning Saturday night to beat Southern California 5-2 in the NCAA Dist. 8 playoffs and halt the Trojans' streak of five straight NCAA baseball titles.

Pepperdine thus advanced to Sunday's finals against Fullerton State, the only unbeaten team in the district playoffs. Fullerton needs just one victory Sunday in this double elimination tournament to advance to the College World Series in Omaha. Pepperdine, with one defeat, needs a sweep of Sunday's doubleheader.

Trailing 2-1 as the ninth inning opened, Pepperdine center fielder Skip Willis led off with a single and designated hitter Rob Klebba singled him to third with none out. Then second baseman Steve Smith singled to score Willis, tying the game at 2-2.

At that point, starter John Racanelli was replaced by reliever Ty Meyer, who hit third baseman Jesus Mejia in face with a pitch, loading the bases. Catcher Blaine Calder walked, forcing in Klebba with the winning run. Robert Correles singled home two more runs to cap the inning.

Tony Cameron, 7-1, limited the Trojans to four hits

Host state championship

Citrus wins north title

FRESNO — Citrus College, seeded into the Northern California portion of the state junior college baseball tournament, claimed the northern title Saturday afternoon by completing a three-game sweep with an 8-5 victory over Fresno City College at Euless Park here.

With the northern victory in the bag, Coach Skip Claprood's Owls (32-9) return home to host the state championship series next weekend against Southern California champion Cerritos (33-7) which completed a three-game sweep also with a 9-1 victory over East Los Angeles Saturday.

"Our ability to bounce back and our pitching depth has been the story of our season," Claprood said after it was over Saturday.

It was certainly the story in the tournament here. The Owls beat Fresno, 8-7, in 12 innings in Friday's opener and then edged San Mateo, 4-3, Friday night. Righthander Ron Walton (12-2) earned both victories, coming on in relief in the opener and going eight innings in the nitecap.

Jon Field (10-2) was the winner Saturday, coming on for 7 1/3 innings in relief of Eric Mustad, who gave up three runs in Fresno's second inning.

The lead held up for four innings and then Citrus exploded four four runs in the fifth and three in the sixth.

Greg Johnston opened the fifth with a walk and Todd Ervin followed with a double. Frank Convertino singled to score Johnston and Dave Hostetler's ground ball pushed Ervin home.

Jim Ayers followed with a booming triple that plated Convertino and Worth Valentine doubled to chase Ayers home.

In the sixth Kim Eppard and Gary Bach reached base on errors and Johnston walked to load the bases. Ervin followed with a single to score Eppard and Convertino's sacrifice fly sent Bach to the plate. Hostetler finished the scoring with a single to push Johnston home.

The Owls added a single tally in the seventh as Jim McCadden singled, went to second on Eppard's sacrifice bunt and scored on Johnston's single.

Ervin, the tiny shortstop from Claremont, led the 13-hit attack with four hits in five trips to the plate. He was 8 for 14 with six runs scored for the three-game series. Frank Convertino was the top RBI man for the tourney with seven, hitting safely 10 times in 14 at bats.

Seagren hurt vaulting

NEW YORK (AP) — Pole vaulter Bob Seagren, who lately has been making a nice living by winning purses in the annual Superstars Sports Carnival, competing in International Track Association pro meets and doing beer commercials, may be out of commission for a while thanks to a freebee.

Seagren pulled a tendon muscle during his first and only jump in an outdoor exhibition Saturday in midtown Manhattan and expressed doubt that he would be jumping again in the near future.

"I don't think I'm gonna be competing for a while," said a wincing Seagren as he rubbed the back of his rapidly-swelling left leg. "Last Sunday up in Eugene (Ore.) I got a light pull in this leg. The doctor told me it was only a bruise, just an irritation, and so I didn't think anything about competing here today.

"Now I think I've torn the muscle right on up to my hamstring," he said. "My leg is bleeding under the skin and it looks bad.

By KEVIN CLOE
PB Staff Writer

Garey High's Stan Webster and Ontario High's mile relay team captured CIF varsity titles Saturday at two different locations in high school track and field division championship action.

Webster, who at one time this season held the top long jump mark in the nation, was crowned the CIF 3-A long jump champion Saturday afternoon at El Modena High.

Webster's mark, however, didn't even come close to the one he recorded at the San Antonio League finals this year. In fact, the versatile junior athlete didn't top the CIF frosh-soph record he set last year.

Jumping from the unorthodox El Modena runway, Webster cleared 22 feet even to capture the division title. His best this season was a wind-aided 24 feet, 9 inches at the SAL finals. He holds the CIF 3-A frosh-soph record at 22 feet, 1 inch.

So now Stan and four other valley varsity athletes will advance to the CIF Masters Meet next Friday at Cerritos College.

The other four include Pomona hurdler Dwayne Jackson, Ganesha hurdler Lloyd Jones, Pomona long jumper Arthur Hodges and Pomona shot putter Hank Zibell.

Ontario will be the only team represented in the Masters Meet from the Hacienda League.

The Jaguars' mile relay quintet of John Newsome, Elijah Bishop, John Skeete and Gil McCroey coasted to a 3:22.8 victory in the final running event of the night in the 2-A finals at Valencia High Saturday night.

Ontario's "iron man" Marcus Jennings also advanced to the Masters by placing third in the varsity long jump with a mark of 23 feet, 5¾ inches.

Jennings accounted for half of the Jags points on the varsity level by placing fourth in the 100 (10.1), fifth in the 220 (22.9), third in the long jump, and anchoring the third-place quarter mile relay team (43.4).

Frosh-soph champions in the 2-A include Alta Loma miler Joel Hope (a record 4:21.1) and San Dimas shot putter Sonny LaFargue (a record 57 feet, 5 inches).

Notre Dame of Sherman Oaks won the varsity title in the 3-A with 56 points, while Mission Viejo won the varsity crown in the 2-A with 51 points.

Mountain View claimed the 3-A frosh-soph championship with 36 points, while Verbum Dei was crowned frosh-soph king in the 2-A with 44 points.

Pomona ended up in fourth place in both the varsity (18 points) and the frosh-soph (23 points) in the 3-A, while Ontario claimed third place (28 points) in the varsity division of the 2-A.

June's Love hurt, out

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — A field of 11 was entered Saturday for Monday's $100,000 Californian at Hollywood Park then only a short time later one of the favorites, June's Love, suffered a training accident and had to be destroyed.

The chestnut gelding took a bad step and broke both sesamoids and fractured the cannon bone in his right front leg, a spokesman said.

In the varsity competition of the 3-A meet, Pomona's Jackson led the race in the 330 low hurdles right up to the final hurdle. Hitting the final standard with his lead foot, Dwayne momentarily lost his balance and watched Bassett's Bruce Ashman nip him at the wire. Jackson's second place time was 38.0 seconds — same as Ashman's.

Mounties take 3rd

Mt. San Antonio College, with last minute heroics by a pair of triple jumpers, finished third with 39 points. Glendale was second with 50

Sprinter Pat Cranor of Citrus College won the 220 in 21.4 seconds and finished fourth in the 100 with a 9.9 to help the Owls to fifth place with 22 points.

Los Angelese Harbor and Grossmont tied for fourth with 27 points, while L.A. City shared fifth with Citrus.

Triple jumpers Stan Bland and Ehricke Scott finished second and third in their event to propel the Mounties from out of the pack. Their 14 points in that event came on jumps of 48-7¾ and 48-6¾, respectively.

Hurdler Andre Hall scored a second place finish for MSAC with a 14.5 inthe 120 highs. Teammate Dwight Ownes was fifth in the highs and took a fifth in the 440 intermediates.

Third place finishes were recorded by Harold Carter of Citrus in the long jump (23-7¼) and MSAC's mile relay team (3:12.9), while MSAC pole vaulter Kevin French finished in a four-way tie for second in his event with 15-0.

Former Claremont High star Marcus Gordien, now competing for San Bernardino Valley, won the discus with a throw of 171-6.

Sports news in brief

MONTREAL (AP) — Preparations for equestrian events at the 1976 Olympic Games have been endorsed by a delegation of the German Federal Republic Equestrian Federation headed by Count Landsberg-Velen.

"We are very satisfied with everything," Count LandsbergVelen said Friday following inspection of the grounds at the Bromont equestrian centre.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Oldtime racers Ray Harroun, Eddie Rickenbacker, Ted Horn and Mauri Rose were named to the American Auto Racing Writers and Broadcasters Association Hall of Fame Saturday.

Rose won the Indianapolis 500 in 1941, 1947 and 1948. He is the only member of the quartet of driving greats still living.

WEST LONG BRANCH, N.J. (AP) — The New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association will return to Monmouth College for the fifth year this fall to conduct preseason training, it was announced.

The reporting date for rookies is Sept. 21, and team regulars will follow a few days later. Training will last until Oct. 20.

Stary stars in girls' track, field prelims

Track star Jenny Stary of Claremont High broke the school record in the girls long jump Saturday, but she thinks she could have done better.

On her first jump at the Girls CIF Eastern Section prelims at Claremont Men's College, Stary qualified for next Friday's finals to be held at Cerritos College.

Stary's jump of 17-5¾ surpassed the automatic qualifying distance of 17-4, and made it unnecessary for her to compete further in the event.

"I probably could have done better if I had kept jumping," said the Claremont senior, "but there was no point to it. It would have tired me out, and sometimes I spike myself when I jump."

Avoiding unnecessary fatigue turned out to be a wise move for Stary, as she later qualified for next week's finals in the high jump and went on to anchor Claremont's qualifying 880 medley relay team in the last event of the meet. Her 440 split time of 61.7 in the medley was her best of the year as she, Staci Johnson and sisters Terri and Kathy Ryan completed the relay in 1:53.6.

Ontario's medley team of Rene Carter, Annette Garner, Gilda Walker and Donna Fromme placed third in the event at 1:53.6, while Chaffey's quartet of Robin Crappa, Sue Farrar, Neva Bedford and Tanya Bowie set a San Antonio League record in the 440 relay with a time of 50.7 good for third place.

Carter captured another third place for Ontario in the 220 (25.6) and Fromme placed fourth in the 440 (60.7).

Upland's Corny Sonnenburg won the 80 yard hurdles in 11.1, but teammate Linda Hightower failed to qualify in the event. After watching the video replay, the judges ruled that Hightower had been nipped for fourth place by Becky Arnall of Monrovia, with both girls timed in 11.4.

The top four finishers in each running event will advance to the finals, as well as the fastest fifth place between the meet at CMC and the Western Sectional held at San Marcos. The report from San Marcos was that the fifth finisher in the 80 yard hurdles ran the event in 11.3, eliminating Hightower.

The Upland runner will be going to the finals, however, since she placed third in the 440 (59.6).

Post 335 rallies to beat Claremont

La Verne Post 335 rallied for four runs in the last two innings Saturday in its season opener to edge Claremont Post 78, 5-4 in American Legion baseball.

Trailing 5-1, La Verne scored twice in the eighth on two hits and a balk. In the ninth, Wally Pitts drew a one-out walk. After Brad Snederek struck out, Jerry Osborne and HP Drake each singled. Drake's hit scored Pitts easily and when Claremont centerfielder Tim Helton let the ball get away from him, Osborne scored all the way from first with the winning run.

Claremont almost tied the game in the last of the ninth. Dave Aguilera drew a one-out walk and John Huddleston ran for him. Mark Robertson walked. With two out, Joe Sokolowski lined a hit to right. But Paul Richards fired the ball to second baseman Bruce Hines who made a perfect relay to Pitts at the plate in time to nail Huddleston.

Poly tracksters do well at Irvine

IRVINE — Cal Poly thinclads took three firsts and two seconds Saturday at UC Irvine's invitational track meet.

John Carrillo won the discuss with a throw of 148-10x. Mike James took the triple jump with a leap of 48-4 and Joe Schieffer the high jump with a height of 6-8.

James also placed second in the long jump (23-9½) with his efforts in both events his personal bests. Lonnie Carr was second in the shot put (51-4¾).

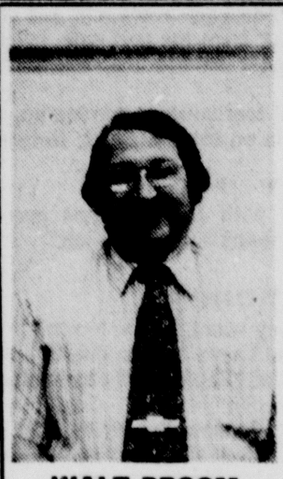

Mark Kegans set a new Poly record in the pole vault clearing 16 feet and breaking the old record set by Sam Marich in 1968. Marich's mark was 15-6½.

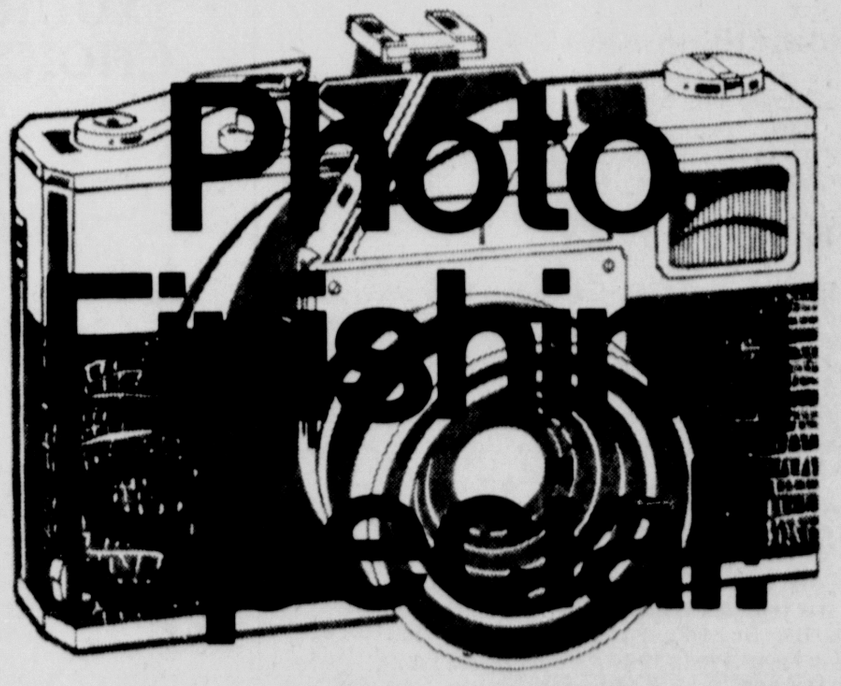

However, because of the number of attempts, Kegan's vault was good only for third place. Schieffer was also third in the triple jump and Larry Joyner took a third in the triple jump. Anthony Gray placed fourth in the long jump.

Teaching pro does class job

By PHIL ROCHE
P-B Golf Writer

Articulate and thoughtful, Bruce Perrin, assistant pro out at Marshall Canyon, rates as one of the best teaching golf professionals in the Pomona Valley and possibly all of the Southland. His instructions are simple, easy to understand, and when he demonstrates how a shot should be played, the pupil sees a smooth, powerful swing in action.

Perrin took a look at my swing with the nine iron the other day, then made some adjustments. He moved my hands forward, moved me close to the ball, told me to hit the shot with my big feet about 12 inches apart, then stood back to watch the results.

A quick improvement, but better yet, a real insight as to how all short shots should be played.

Perrin runs a well-stocked pro shop and always seems ready to stop for a time and converse with all who drop in. A real pro in every sense of the word — Bruce Perrin.

Junior champs still winning

Former world's champ of 14-year-olds, Mark Pailthorpe of Glendora High is still cleaning up at age 15. He won the Sierra League golf title last week by shooting 78 at Ontario National and 73 at Los Serranos South. He followed up with a fine 71 at Western Hills on Monday during the CIF sectional team event.

* * *

Pros and their money

It's fun to check the money winnings for touring pros from time to time. Everyone knows Miller and Nicklaus lead the Tour with upwards of $155,000, but one wonders how the other fellows fare.

Victor Regalado, the pro who spent many an hour on Pomona Valley courses, has won $13,133 thus far. Jim Dent has made $16,253 and Alan Tapie, $10,732.

Working women

The May issue of Golf Superintendent features women working on golf courses in outdoor, demanding jobs, and you've never seen such healthy girls (old and young) in all your life. Golf widows, unite. Join your husband on the course, and get a job mowing greens.

Stars in Reno

More than twenty sports and entertainment "superstars" will be competing in Harrah's 17th Invitational Golf Tournament June 2-5 in Reno.

The celebrities will be among more than 300 golfers vying for a hole-in-one prize of a Rolls Royce Silver Shadow.

Football greats invited to the event include Roman Gabriel, Joe Namath, James Harris, Ted Kwalick, Daryle Lamonica, Jim Plunkett, Ed Podolak, Johnny Unitas and Mary Hubbard.

Former Michigan State coach Duffy Daugherty — who's currently a sports commentator — television sportscaster Tom Harmon, Los Angeles Rams coach Chuck Knox and former baseball manager Herman Franks will also be competing.

Former baseball player Willie Mays and basketball greats Cazzie Russel and Jerry West will also be testing their golf skills in the "Rolls Royce of Tournaments."

Something new

Peter Oosterhuis of England has played in 19 straight tournaments this year and made the 36-hole cut in 13. Isn't it tiring? "Not really," he said, "because every place we've been is a new place, so we have something to look forward to."

Flip and Trevino

Flip Wilson, who is becoming something of a regular in the Pro-Ams on the Tour, went out to the gallery with Lee Trevino in the first round of the First NBC New Orleans Open. Flip showed up dressed like Pancho Villa, wearing the big sombrero with a couple of six shooters. Trevino was asked if Flip distracted him, and Lee laughed "Nothing distracts me as long as they don't grab my club on the backswing."

Bright, young player

Eddie Pearce, at age 23, is one of the brightest players on the Tour, one reason being his maturing rapidly. As he told Bob Roesler, of the New Orleans Times-Picayne, "You know, I used to be a wild guy. I'd go without sleep for four days. I'd just play golf and party. Then I got married and there was something called security. You have to credit Maureen (his wife, Little Mo) for helping me to settle down."

Palmer can't quit

After the Houston Open, Arnold Palmer said he was going home and wouldn't play again on the Tour until the U.S. Open. Now, he's in the Atlanta Classic, . . . The Billy Caspers now have 10 children, after Shirley presented Sarah Beth to the family on May 3. They have four by natural birth and six are adopted. "I'll be a father and a grandfather in the same year," Billy said proudly. "My daughter is expecting in October."

Mobile radio expert in pits

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Among the best kept secrets at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in recent years have been the frequencies used by racing teams on their two-way radio transmissions from pit crew to car.

"I won't talk about what frequencies the drivers use," explained Jim Adams, owner of Progressive Electronics and pioneer in race car radio communications. "They don't want everybody to know what they're saying."

After several years of experimenting and trials by himself and others, Adams installed a radio in A.J. Foyt's 1973 Indy car. "We had some last minute problems," he said, "but I was able to get it going just before the race.

"The radio went onto the starting line without being tested. Later on, we had a terrible crash, but Foyt was able to call in and say he was alright.

"That actually was the first time we were able to use it. I stick around the pits during the race with my battery powered soldering irons and special tools I've made, to do quick work on the radios," Adams said.

"I've also helped out as a mechanic if a crew is shorthanded. The guys really kid me when I have to handle a chalk board. Here I am, the radio man, chalking pit information on a slate and holding it up for a driver to see. It's like going back to the stone age."

Adams said noise is the biggest problem in the use of the two-way communicators. "Every car has different characteristics. Noise comes mostly from the engine magneto which generates enough electrical interference to mess up the radio signal.

"Some earlier radios were small enough to be carried on the driver. We tried one on the late Jim Malloy in a road race where a big pile-up happened. We called him on the radio, told him about the yellow light, and where the wreckage was.

"He slowed down, pussy-footed throgh the mess and made it. Mario Andretti, who didn't have a radio, whizzed on past Jim and smashed into the pileup. After the race, Jim said, 'Well, I guess we've proved the radios.'"

The use of radios has been hampered somewhat by the design of several cars in this year's Indy race, including Foyt's new Coyote.

Foyt, who will be going after an unprecedented fourth Indy victory Sunday, has an exceptionally low-slung car, making it difficult to install the radio device.

Adams also noted the magneto in Foyt's car is located behind the driver's head, making radio reception impossible, although he is able to transmit. Foyt asked that the radio be removed until a solution is found.

Tyler Alexander, team manager for defending champion Johnny Rutherford's Team McLaren, said, "We've had very good luck with the radio. If Foyt wants, we'll even throw away our radios—if he'll throw away his motor."

Flyersdon't count on one player

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Fred Shero says there are only two players on his team, Bobby Clarke and Bernie Parent, who could make the Montreal Canadiens' squad.

Then how come the Flyers and not the Canadiens are playing the Buffalo Sabres in the best-of-seven game National Hockey League Stanley Cup championship?

"Because we don't rely on one individual to have a super game or make the super play," Shero says. "With a team like Montreal everything is one-on-one."

Shero is a nut about his system. Any time you talk hockey with the Flyers' coach, the conversation invariably turns to the system. Everybody does his job and the team wins.

"To win against good competition," says Shero, "you have to set up two-on-ones or three-on-ones, which is what our team does. It takes discipline and self sacrifice. It won't work where players want to put the pick in the net themselves.

"I'm lucky, there isn't a selfish man on this team."

Reggie Leach is a typical example of what Shero is talking about. Leach was always a free-wheeling player. Then he was traded from California to Philadelphia.

At first, Leach was lost. He scored three goals in 20 games. He admitted that he not only didn't know where he was supposed to be, but also couldn't keep up with the positioning of his teammates.

"All of a sudden it came," Leach recalled.

Playing the system didn't diminish Leach's offensive value. As a matter of fact it improved. He scored 45 goals and contributed 33 assists for 78 points, third highest on the Flyers.

Shero expects his system to prevail against Buffalo, although the teams are tied 2-2 heading into today's fifth game of the series (NBC-TV at 12:30 p.m.).

All-Star balloting underway thru July 6

NEW YORK (AP) — Voting begins this weekend as fans around the country select their choices for the starting teams in baseball's 1975 All Star Game.

Cumputer card ballots listing 64 players in each league have been distributed to major league and minor league ball parks for the voting which starts Saturday and continues through Sunday, July 6. The All Star Game will be played Tuesday night, July 15 in Milwaukee.

More than six million fans voted in last year's balloting with Oakland outfielder Reggie Jackson setting a record by attracting almost 3½ million votes.

Jackson heads the 24 outfielders listed on the AL ballot this year. That list includes Hank Aaron for the first time. Aaron, the alltime home run king and a perennial National League All Star switched leagues last winter when he was traded by the Atlanta Braves to the Milwaukee Brewers.

Included on the National League ballot is first baseman Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who was elected to the starting team as a write-in candidate last year and wound up being chosen most valuable player in the game won by the NL, 7-2.

Garvey is one of 23 players appearing on the ballot for the first time. Fans are not restricted to voting for the computer card candidates and may write in votes for other players. Only two players, Garvey last year and Rico Carty in 1970, have been elected to the starting lineup as write-ins.

As usual, there have been some slipups on the ballots because of the early deadline required in selecting players in order to satisfy printing and distribution deadlines.

The American league ballot, for example, lists ex-Oakland second baseman Dick Green, who retired before the start of the 1975 season, and catcher Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox, who has been on the disabled list all year. Missing on the AL side are two of the league's top hitters, outfielders Leon Roberts of Detroit and Roy White of New York; as well as Larry Hisle of the Minnesota Twins, who shares the AL runs batted in lead.

On the National League side, Cleon Jones of the New York Mets, who has been on the disabled list all season, is listed among the outfielders but Atlanta catcher Vic Correll, tied for the league lead with eight home runs, is missing.

Quotes of week

By The Associated Press

Here are some of the notable quotes of the week in sports:

"We're all going to wear miner's helmets, the ones with the flashlights on top, and we're going to paint the puck orange." — Terry Crisp of the Philadelphia Flyers, suggesting a solution to beat the fog in hot, humid Buffalo during the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs.

"If the fans don't like to sit in the stands with that wind, how do they expect us to play in it?" — Derrel Thomas, San Francisco Giants second baseman, after being booed by a crowd of 1,795 at gusty Candlestick Park when a wind-swept pop fly eluded him for a double.

"I feel if I don't hit, the Braves don't win. I hate to say it, but that's the way it looks." — Defending batting champion Ralph Garr, fighting an early season batting slump.

"I have a long record of challenges met. If you don't believe me, come to Montreal July 17 next year and watch the opening of the Games." — Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau, pledging that his city will host the 1976 Olympics despite repeated construction delays.

"The main thing is I like Southern California. I feel very fortunate to be here. Guys like O.J. Simpson and Mike Garrett had to leave." — Running back Anthony Davis explaining his reason for signing with the World Football League's Southern California Sun.

Boone family plays Knott's

Pat Boone, his wife Shirley, and four daughters are appearing today and Monday at the Good Time Theater of Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park.

PAT BOONE

The Boone family will perform at 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 tonight and at 4:30, 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. Memorial Day.

The performance marks the opening of the summer season at the new theater. The schedule: The Captain and Tennille Friday through next Sunday; grand opening weekend June 6-8; Johnny Rivers, June 12-18; B. J. Thomas, June 19-25; The Supremes, June 26-July 2; Johnny Mann's Stand Up and Cheer, July 3-9; Frankie Avalon, July 17-23; the DeFranco Family, July 24-30; Rick Nelson and the Stone Canyon Band, July 31-Aug. 6; Roger Miller, Aug. 7-13; the Lennon Sisters, Aug. 14-20, and the Lettermen, Aug. 21-27.

Boone will be joined by his wife and daughters, as the sextet sings "I Believe in Music."

The Boone girls please audiences with their swinging song and dance routines, highlighted with impersonations of such female vocal groups as the Andrew Sisters, the Cordettes, and the McGuire Sisters.

Boone, who has sold over 45-million records since he began singing professionally in 1954, holds an all-time record for having at least one hit on the charts for more than 200 consecutive weeks. His nearest contender could put together a string of only 159 straight weeks.

Rolling Stones rolling

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Not long before Mick Jagger's right hand went through a restaurant's glass door and required 20 stitches this weekend, the Rolling Stone had been saying this summer's tour by the Stones isn't meant to be the last.

"If I get run over by a bus it will be." Well, the hand isn't as serious as being run over by a bus. Doubtless there'll be less tossing of the microphone from hand to hand as Jagger struts across the front of the stage, but the strut, the lead singing, and the tour should be okay.

And Jagger, as even he admits, is the heartbeat of the Rolling Stones. The public's focus is almost entirely on him and has been throughout the British quintet's phenomenally successful 13-year career. Remove him and the touring stops.

But offstage, Jagger, now 31, says he's a different person from the street-fighting man, sex symbol onstage. The onstage description isn't Jagger's. He says he doesn't know how the fans perceive him and he's not too interested.

Offstage, he says he can walk down a street and sometimes fans stop him but they're usually polite. He doesn't feel he has to seclude himself inside hotel rooms or venture out only heavily disguised. "I try to be ordinary, the same as everyone else.

"Some musicians can't do that. They want to be 'I am. I am.' I went through that, 'I am. I am.' It comes back sometimes. Your personality changes. You become 'I am. I am.' I think it's because you have to. You rehearse to tour, then you tour and you need it to get through the thing. You need a lot of ego to get through everything sometimes.

"When you're not working, you can let all that fall away. If you keep working all the time, you never can come back to the person who doesn't have to give out certain things expected of them from a live audience.

"You have to stop working sometimes and come back into yourself again, become a calm person.

"I think calm performers are really boring. Everyone should be controlled on stage but it doesn't mean they have to be calm.

URGENT TALK — Maggi Ellen Hines and Hugh F. Rowans enact a dramatic scene from "Wine in the Wilderness," to be presented in Cal Poly's Studio Theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Also on the program is "Audio Play: Voices," an experimental production.

Cal Poly to offer 2 short productions

The Cal Poly Drama Department will present two short plays, "Wine in the Wilderness' by Alice Childress and "Audio Play: Voice" by Jakov Lind, in the Studio Theater Thursday through Saturday and the following weekend.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. for all performances but this Friday when it is 7:15 p.m.

"Wine" takes a look at black culture in America. The story takes place in a slum Harlem apartment during the summer of 1964. Bill Jameson, a young black artist, wants to use Tommie as a model because she is a contrast to the "African ideal."

Bill is played by Hugh F. Rowans; Tommie by Maggi Ellen Hines, Cynthia by Billie Faye Jefferson, Sonny-man by Paul A. Liddell, and Oldtimer by Arthur P. Brown Jr. Ike Sanders directs.

"Audio Play," directed by Jack Newby, is an experimental piece that examines man and his destiny as expressed by many voices. Lights, sound, setting and audience are important parts of the play.

HEIDI BRUHL

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Hollywood is a town where, generally, friendships last as long as the contract is in effect and gratitude is a word in crossword puzzles. So it's nice to tell the story of Heidi Bruhl.

She is currently one of the two leading ladies (Vonetta McGee is the other) in Clint Eastwood's new film, "The Eiger Sanction." And it is because of Eastwood that Heidi has the part.

Years ago, when Eastwood was hungry, he went to Italy after his TV series, Rawhide, collapsed. Heidi and her husband, Brett Halsey, befriended Clint and Maggie Eastwood. Then he made his first spaghetti western, "A Fistful of Dollars."

Even before that was released, he was asked to do another. But he was disillusioned and wanted to go home. It was Heidi who talked him into staying and doing the second, "For a Few Dollars More," which brought him worldwide fame.

They have maintained their friendship over the years.

Five groups join in fete

Five local cultural groups will take part in the third annual Four Arts Festival on the plaza of the Pomona Civic Center from 1 to 5 p.m. June 8.

The theme will again be "Picnic in the Plaza." Admission is free. The public is invited to bring a picnic lunch and spend an afternoon looking at art exhibits, watching artists at work, listening to band and chorus concerts and watching ballet and drama productions. Leroy Hughes, former president of Valley Community Theater, will be master of ceremonies.

The Pomona Valley Art Association will have exhibits and demonstrations in a wide variety of media, including ceramics, cornhusk dolls and flowers. There will be a "make it and take it" collage booth for children.

Beginning at 1:30 p.m. the Valley Concert Dance Theater, under the direction of JoAnn Warner, will present "Americana Ballet" with music by Aaron Copeland. At 2:30 p.m. the Pomona Community Chorus, with Ray Woods directing, will present selections from the musicals "Oliver!" and "Camelot" in addition to works by Mozart and Copeland.

Following the chorus will be Valley Community Theater at 3:30 p.m. with exerpts from "Godspell" which was presented during March and April this year. Closing the afternoon's festivities will be the Pomona Concert Band with light classic and band selections. The band is directed by Stanton Selby, professor of music at Mt. San Antonio College.

The Four Arts Festival was begun in 1973 with the encouragement of the Pomona Cultural Arts Commission for the purpose of giving valley residents an introduction to the various cultural programs available to them. This year the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department is co-sponsoring the festival. Mrs. Susan Hunt, cultural arts coordinator, is working with the five participating groups. Further information concerning the festival can be obtained at 622-9967 between noon and 4 p.m.

chopper operation was a confused jumble. Some critics blame this on the fact that Air Force helicopter pilots are not trained for such troop landings and officials reportedly decided Navy choppers could not be brought there in time.

Three choppers were destroyed, one of them falling into the sea about 100 feet short of the beach. The tide was high and 13 of the 26 men aboard died. Cambodian fire also damaged two other helicopters, but they made it back to Thailand.

Enemy fire was so hot that about 144 Marines were put down on a small constricted beach about 500 yards from the main landing zone. There they were pinned down, while 22 other Marines who had been unloaded on the intended landing zone were stranded. Ultimately they were taken off by helicopter.

U.S. jets rocketed and bombed the jungle, but officials said they could not pour in full firepower for fear of killing or wounding any Mayaguez seamen who might still have been Cambodian prisoners on the islands.

When Schlesinger held a news conference eight hours after the Marines landed, he gave no inkling they were in trouble.

Pentagon spokesmen insisted the Marines met only small arms fire. But later they had to acknowledge the Cambodians used mortars, rockets, heavy machineguns, and at least one 85 millimeter recoilless weapon.

U.S. intelligence is being criticized for failing to assess more accurately in advance the size and armament of the Cambodian force on Koh Tang.

Intelligence also is being rapped for failing to detect that there were no Mayaguez crewmen on the island any longer.

By the time the first helicopter landed on Koh Tang, the crew already had been freed by the Cambodians and was on its way toward the Mayaguez in the Thai fishing boat.

Soon after reaching Kompong Som the Americans were moved to a small island called Rong San Lem near Kompong Som. This move was made at night and went undetected by U.S. reconnaissance.

As Miller told it, he negotiated with Cambodian commanders through an interpreter, promising that if his crew was released to return to the Mayaguez, he could call his firm's office in Bangkok and have it "inform the authorities to stop the jet fighters and Marines from landing in Cambodia."

Apparently, it worked.

About 2½ hours after setting sail for the Mayaguez, the fishing boat was sighted by the destroyer Wilson off Koh Tang.

Eight minutes later, 13 planes from the Coral Sea bombed the Ream Airbase on the mainland and destroyed 17 planes of Cambodia's tiny air force, according to Pentagon accounts.

Meanwhile, at 10:45 p.m. EDT, the Wilson radioed Washingto its sighting of the fishing boat flying white flags (actually underwear and shirts waved by Mayaguez crewmen).

Within a half-hour of the boat's sighting, the entire crew was aboard the Wilson and Schlesinger phoned the news to the President waiting in his office.

One minute later, the White House ordered a halt in all offensive operations and withdrawal from Koh Tang.

But one more blow remained to be struck.

It is the second raid, on oil storage and other facilities near Kompong Som, that has posed questions because it came well after rescue of the Mayaguez crew.

Neither Schlesinger nor his spokesman mentioned it that night and Laitin acknowledged it only when questioned some 14 hours after the entire operation ended.

"The reasons for it were that there were almost 200 Marines on a nearby island under heavy attack by these people," he said.

The Pentagon also put on a puzzling performance in reporting casualties. For days, the figures changed up and down, until last Tuesday when the final count was put at 15 dead, 3 missing and probably dead, and 50 wounded.

By way of explanation, Laitin said "these things are very complicated when men get scattered among different ships and different bases" following an operation.

Laitin denied any intent to obfuscate in order to soften the blow.

But the belated official disclosure that the 23 Air Force helicopter deaths in Thailand were related to the Mayaguez operation has deepened skepticism.

Critics also note that the Pentagon did not make public, until four days after the operation, that Coral Sea planes flew a reconnaissance mission over Cambodia before the two bomb strikes and that a fourth mission was diverted to Koh Tong after the crew was freed.

Several questions remain unresolved.

Why wasn't the U.S. government alerted to danger by a reported firing on a South Korean freighter off Cambodia on May 3, and by the halting of a Panamanian cargo ship by a Cambodian gunboat in the same area May 7?

Was the seizure of the Mayaguez a move calculated and ordered by the Cambodian government or could it have been done on the spur of the moment by the commander of the Cambodian boat that intercepted the freighter?

Then there is the mysterious case of a Cambodian gunboat which sailed into Sattahip the day after the Mayaguez and its crew were retaken, and asked Thai officials for asylum.

The crew of the Cambodian gunboat reportedly told a tale of seizing the Mayaguez and then undergoing a change of heart. So far, Pentagon officials say they don't know anything to support or disprove this story, but they doubt the claim.

$100 tip might spark return of old custom

NEW YORK (AP) — The custom of giving one's seat on the bus to little old ladies may be in for a revival.

A 34-year-old woman writer boarded a Broadway bus for a routine trip to her West side apartment.

A short time later, a well-dressed, elderly woman got on the bus. There were no seats for the woman, who seemed somewhat winded. She was too short to reach the metal loops above her for support.

The younger woman, without looking at the bill, gave it back and said: "That's not necessary."

When the writer reached her stop, the older woman again crammed the bill into her pocket and said "Please don't make a scene."

The writer shrugged, hopped off the bus and dashed across Broadway to make the light. Only then did she reach into her pocket to look at the money.

It was a $100 bill.

Family Weekly

It's hard to find a room in Washington that isn't bugged. When I swear in witnesses, I ask them to give the whole truth, nothing but the truth and please speak directly into the flower vase.

— Vice President Nelson Rockefeller

The Jerry and Rocky Show:

Humor Is Alive and Well Again in the White House

It's been quite some time since humor has been characteristic of White House affairs. In fact, most Presidents and Vice Presidents have had considerable difficulty getting along at all. Our current President and Vice President are the exception. Perhaps it's that, with money tight and foreign politics in desperate straits, a sense of humor is more essential than ever. Whatever the cause, it's reassuring to know that our country's leaders are seeing eye to eye. Don't miss this tender, funny portrait of Gerald Ford and Nelson Rockefeller in this week's FAMILY WEEKLY.

The answer

Camisoles are the answer for a feminine, cool look for sultry summer days. Originally feminine underwear, these tops are modest yet brief.

Demarcation

Avoid easily the need to apply liquid foundation to your neck and shoulders. Foundation color should match your natural complexion. Its purpose is to even out skin tones so take more care when selecting a foundation. Avoid one darker than your skin tone.

Other members of the Flower Circle who were present were: Mrs. Connie F. Bulaong, Mrs. Marceline Villanueva, Miss Florita Labsan and Mrs. Flor Josefa Rebelo.

It's just as important to store your foods properly as it is to buy them wisely.

Did you know that dairy foods should be placed in the coldest portion of the refrigerator? That means milk, sour cream, cottage cheese, cheese, half and half should be kept covered and go in the section nearest the freezer.

New shirt

Everyone needs at least one cool, loose and crunchy shirt in his wardrobe. Made of gauzy cotton-polyester, the shirt can be pulled on without a moment's thought of ironing.

For real

Good news for those who are tiring of the synthetic look. Fashion news for fall is that apparel and accessories will stress natural fibers such as pure wools, pure silks and real leather.

Picnic set

The 41st annual Kendall County, Iowa picnic will be held June 8 at Pierson Park, Harbor Boulevard and Sycamore Street, Anaheim.

A potluck buffet will be served at noon. All former residents of the county are invited to attend the picnic.

Inflation, recession:

More families may lose homes

The twin pressures of inflation and unemployment are causing people to fall behind in their mortgage payments, threatening a growing number of Americans with foreclosure and the loss of their homes.

Bankers, legislators and government officials say the first quarter of 1975 has not been so bad as they expected. But they are worried about the future. They say there is a time lag between high unemployment and mortgage defaults; they wonder what will happen when unemployment compensation benefits run out and people use up savings.

About 4 per cent of the more than 15 million mortgage holders in the nation are at least a month late in their payments and about half of 1 per cent of all oustanding mortgages were in foreclosure at the end of 1974, according to government and industry figures.

The percentages are small, but they involve thousands of people. Four per cent of 15 million is 600,000; half a per cent is 75,000. The latest available figures from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board show that 36,540 loans were placed in foreclosure in the last quarter of 1974 alone, up 5.5 per cent from the previous quarter.

There are two basic types of mortgages: conventional loans, issued by banks, other lending institutions and individuals at an interest rate determined by the marketplace, and government-insured loans, where the interest rate is set by law and is lower than the usual going rate.

A loan is considered delinquent when it is one month past due. Long-term delinquencies — often the last step before foreclosure — are those where payments are 90 days or more past due.

The Mortgage Bankers Association of America said a national survey showed that the long-term delinquency rate for conventional loans was .27 per cent during the last quarter of 1974. That matched the June 1974 rate which was the highest in the 22 years that the association has been keeping tabs on late payments.

"Mortgage delinquency rates have yet to show the full impact of the recession," the association said.

Claude E. Pope, a member of the association's board of governors, told Congress: "Once long-term unemployment figures start to rise, an increase in foreclosures may be rapid."

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reports there was just over $414 billion in outstanding mortgage debt at the end of last year. About half of the money was loaned by savings and loan associations; the rest came from commercial banks, mutual savings banks, life insurance companies, government agencies and private sources.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development, which, through the Federal Housing Authority (FHA) insures about one-third of all mortgages, has been urging bankers to forbear, to hold off on foreclosure proceedings when possible.

"I think that the mortgage bankers have been listening to us," said H.R. Crawford, assistant secretary for housing management. He and other HUD officials sai foreclosures on FHA-insured loans have been decreasing, from about 5,000 a month at the end of last year to about 4,500 in April.

HUD says it is tightening the requirements for insuring loans. Programs providing subsidized mortgages for low-income families are being phased out. Crawford says inspectors are being more careful of the properties and the people they insure.

"Many of the properties (insured under the subsidized programs) were poorly planned, poorly designed," said Crawford. The foreclosure rate in this area has been high. The Mortgage Bankers survey showed, for example, that just over 2 per cent of the subsidized FHA mortgages were in foreclosure in the last quarter of 1974, compared to about half a per cent of regular FHA loans.

Legislation pending in Congress would provide some relief. A program agreed on by a House-Senate conference committee calls for payments of $250 a month for up to two years for approximately 100,000 homeowners who have either lost their jobs or had their incomes so reduced that they are unable to make full payment on their mortgages.

The homes are located at Carnelian Street and Lemon Avenue and provide a spectacular view of the mountain landscape, he added.

"One home seeker who made several visits to the development to observe the successive stages of construction decribed the mountains as putting on a Technicolor performance for us.

Buyers may select from one and two story homes, which contain three and four bedrooms, two bathrooms and feature ceramic-tiled entry floors, wood burning fireplaces and luminous ceilings in the kitchen and bathroom.

The homes are priced from $43,000, with VA, FHA and conventional terms available.

Prospective home buyers may drive to the new homes by taking the San Bernardino Freeway or Foothill Boulevard to Euclid Avenue, go north to 19th Street, go east about three miles to Carnelian Street, then travel north to the development.

That question is being studied by the Southern California Edison Co., Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties, and the City of Long Beach.

Officials estimate the nine million residents who live in these areas send 13 million tons of solid waste annually to sanitary landfills. This is equivalent to 10 million barrels of oil.

And planners are concered that present disposal sites are filling rapidly and acceptable new locations are becoming more difficult to acquire.

Officials of the five counties and one city have agreed to share information and launch an intensive study toward using the waste resources for energy conversion. It will seek to assess alternative systems for solid waste disposal which involved both material and energy recovery.

"Many ideas and experiments dealing with waste materials have occurred across the country," said Dr. Ira Theirer, associate director of Edison's research and development department. "But this study would include evaluation — that is, system comparisons based on cost, technical and environmental factors for the specific local conditions applicable to the South Coast Basin."

Also included would be ananalysis of the marketability of recoverable materials such as steel or aluminum and analysis of sites where processing facilities might be located.

Should the study lead to successful development of resource recovery facilities in the South Coast Basin, substantial quantities of recyclable materials could be recovered and a portion of Southern California's electrical power needs could be supplied by the energy recovered from the solid waste, said Thierer.

Smaller families to affect rentals

Managers of real estate properties will be affected in future years by a slower population growth and an expansion in the number of small, adult-oriented households.

So predicted Anthony Downs, board chairman of Real Estate Research Corp., in a speech to the Institute of Real Estate Management.

He reported two basic real estate trends:

—Slower total population growth. In the 1950s, the total population rose an average of 2.8 million per year; in the 1960s, 2.4 million; and so far in the 1970s, 1.7 million per year.

—Expansion in the number of small, adult oriented households. Although total population growth is slowing, the rate of household growth has been accelerating because of a shift to smaller households.

"In the 1950s, the number of households rose an average of 910,000 per year; in the 1960s, 1.03 million; and in the 1970s so far, it has risen 1.8 million per year — double the rate in the 1960s," Downs said.

He added also that the percentage of one- and two-person households has increased greatly — from 47 per cent in the 1950s to 82 per cent in the 1970s.

He suggested this trend offers property managers an opportunity if they are aware of the trend to adult-oriented households:

—Families with no concern about schools, and ones willing to live in smaller units, multi-family units and even high-rise units.

A lesser flow of capital into real estate in the near future. This will mean a lower rate of construction, Downs said, but also higher rents in existing properties such as apartments and office buildings.

Rising energy prices, having a great impact on real estate development patterns, including pressure for more efficient buildings.

"It also would put a premium on efficient managerial use of energy. Managers will have to be more innovative in this area, able to better use what already is available," he added.

As a final trend, he observed the increasing tendency for governments at all levels "to intervene in real property markets, drastically affecting the nature of property management and development businesses.

One example of this, Downs said, is rent controls. "These controls have been adopted by New York, Washington, D.C., Boston and the State of Maryland — and are being considered elsewhere.

"Rent control is a disaster, not only because it makes profitable operation of apartments difficult, but also because it stops the creation of new rental properties.

"The result is that, in countries with chronic inflation where rent control has been adopted, all new housing is ownership housing — either single-family, condominium or cooperative — or public housing projects," Downs explained.

Downs, however, noted that one possible implication of the trends mentioned might be the appearance of "new types of owners of property, who want to hedge against inflation by putting some of the assets held in stocks and bonds into real estate.

"This group includes pension funds and bank trust departments, who look at the stock market over the past 15 years — especially the past decade — and see a negative inflation hedge," he said.

Downs observed that the Dow Jones average first hit its present level in 1964. "If you bought $1,000 worth of stock in that year and sold it today, you would get the same $1,000 back — but the Consumer Price Index has gone up 69 per cent since then.

"In contrast, real estate has generally gone up steadily in value during this period, with the current rate of return between 9.5 per cent and 10.5 per cent," he concluded.

Seminar is scheduled Thursday

An educational seminar on investment and property management will be held Thursday at Griswold's Restaurant in Claremont.

The program is sponsored by the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors and the California Association of Realtors.

Speakers will be Hal Tolor of Anaheim, manager of an investment sales office and instructor of investment real estate, and Larry Gutweiler of Playa Del Rey, senior vice president of William Walters Co.

The seminar is open to the public. Realty board members attending may earn a unit of credit toward their Graduate, Realtors Institute (GRI) certificates and designations.

Walter C. Arnold, local board president, said this is an opportunity for real estate practitioners to broaden their knowledge and understanding of their profession.

The registratoin fee is $15, which includes a luncheon and materials. To register, persons may contact the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors, 665 N. Garey Ave., Pomona. The telephone number is 623-1607.

Moonlighting senators: $$ in pockets

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least 70 Senators report they moonlight on the lecture circuit, with last year's fees ranging up to $2,500 for a single speech.

Reports filed with the Senate show:

—Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., took an expense-paid trip to Bermuda last Oct. 31 to speak to an investors group, and was paid $2,000 for his efforts. Brooke is ranking Republican on the securities subcommittee.

—The chairman of the same subcommittee, Harrison A. Williams Jr. of New Jersey, got $2,500 for a talk to the Securities Industry Association last Dec. 4. The group represents stockbrokers, who are directly affected by legislation funneled through the subcommittee.

—The American Bankers Association paid $4,500 to Brooke for two speeches, $2,000 to Williams for one speech, $1,000 to Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and $1,000 to Bob Packwood, R-Ore. All are members of the Banking Committee.

Two senators more than doubled their regular salaries of $42,500 a year. One-time Watergate hearing star Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., topped the list with $49,650. His standard fee was $1,750 per speech. Republican Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon knocked down $45,677 speaking mainly to university and religious groups.

Eight senators reported that they used all or part of their outside earnings for charity or to cover unreimbursed office expenses. One of the top earners, Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., turned over all his $34,350 to charity.

Honorariums have frequently been criticized as handouts in disguise, especially when they are large and come from groups with a special interest in the bill being handled by the recipients.

The latest reports are peppered with examples of such large payments:

—Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., who is second-ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, got $2,000 from the "Ad Hoc Committee for an Effective Investment Tax Credit." Talmadge got another $2,000 from the American Council on Capital Gains and Estate Taxation. The Finance Committee handles tax matters.

—Talmadge also is chairman of the Agriculture and Forestry Committee, and he got $2,500 from the Fertilizer Institute, $1,000 from the Grocery Manufacturers Association, $2,500 from the Quality Bakers of America, $1,000 from the National Broiler Council, and $2,500 from the National Forest Products Association, which paid his way to Marco Island, Fla. for a speech.

—Vance Hartke, D-Ind., chairman of the subcommittee that will handle the Ford administration's proposals to promote competition among government-regulated truckers, got $1,500 from the Common Carrier Conference of the American Trucking Associations, which bitterly opposes the proposals. Hartke also got $1,000 from Atlas Van Lines, a regulated trucking company.

Besides Baker and Hatfield, some of last year's other big earners were Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., $40,750; Talmadge, $32,165; Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, $29,550; Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, $28,800; Brooke, $28,700; Williams, $28,617; John V. Tunney, D-Calif., $25,450; Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., $25,190, and Bob Dole, R-Kan., $20,850.

In all, a score of senators reported getting more than $15,000 in honorariums last year. Starting last Jan. 1 a new law limits federal lawmakers to no more than $1,000 per speech and $25,000 per year.

The Khmer Rouge GI—simple and awed

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Cambodia's victorious Khmer Rouge soldiers live in the manner of medieval monks. Poverty, chastity, obedience are the rules. Exercise is a daily regimen, and drinking, raising hell and chasing women are taboo.

Foreigners released from Phnom Penh last week say the average soldiers are simple, peasant youths bewildered by modern mechanical gadgetry, apparently untutored in political ideology and tightly controlled by the iron hand of their leaders. There are separate women's combat units as well as boy soldiers described as "very aggressive, dangerous and without fear."

Bernard Gaude, a Frenchman who lived in Cambodia for 26 years under four different regimes, spent two weeks with the Khmer Rouge in Phnom Penh and its vicinity after the city fell April 17 and provided one of several accounts of their austere lifestyle:

"They'd wake up at 4 sharp every morning and do about two hours of calesthenics and other physical exercise. This was followed by some close order drill with weapons. Then they'd go about their daily tasks, sweeping the streets and cleaning up the buildings.

"At night, groups of them would gather together for what may have been self-criticism sessions. Several of them would sit in a circle and one would stand up and start talking, looking rather sheepish at times, scratching his chin and so on.

"For food, they carried a little basket with some rice, little bits of dried fish and prahoc (fish sauce). They didn't drink any alcohol. Sometimes when they'd open up a bottle and discover it was wine or liquor they threw it away. But there was a formidable consumption of Pepsi-Colas and orangeades when they came in. They drank them warm and were as happy as kings.

"They said men and women in the army were kept apart and that soldiers were not allowed to have sex. They told me: 'If you were one of us you'd have to be able to get along without a woman.'

"They had some pretty stirring songs on the radio, mostly about B52s and defeating the Americans, but the melodies were nice. I noticed that the soldiers never hummed along. When I did, they smiled, then kept silent.

"At night, patrols would move through the streets without a word. A column would pass by as silently as if it were in a rice paddy. All the men wore light sandals. I was very impressed. It is not surprising that they won."

Some of their behavior provided comic relief to Westerners trapped inside the Cambodian capital and uncertain about their fate. The soldiers put the axe to automobiles they couldn't start, ransacked pharmacies in search of vitamins and popped assorted pills into their mouths. Sometimes the men would get angry when someone took their photograph and couldn't instantly come up with the print.

"They were crazy about radios, watches and cloth, but they had little use for anything else," Gaude said.

"They are 100 per cent peasants who came into the city after five years and naturally they went a little wild. But it didn't last long."

Gaude and others said many Khmer Rouge harbored strong anti-American feelings arising from first-hand experiences of massive U.S. bombings and U.S.-supplied firepower. Americans were often equated with the B52s; some Khmer Rouge told Gaude that had it not been for these the insurgents would have taken Phnom Penh much sooner.

The Frenchman said there are a number of different groups within the victorious army. There appeared to be nationalists of different varieties as well as several kinds of Communists — some with Chinese or North Vietnamese leanings, others with a Soviet bias.

Whatever division exists within the ranks, a well organized group had to be in command to engineer the total depopulation of Phnom Penh. Gaude said it was "terrifyingly magnificent ... to see a city of 3 million emptied within three days."

Along with the young and healthy, the old, the sick, the pregnant and the dying were forced to march out of the city's hospitals, which were packed with thousands of badly wounded soldiers and civilians. Wounded and sick were wheeled in their hospital beds through the streets.

"There was cruelty in this," Gaude said, "but I saw some real compassion and sadness in the faces of the Khmer Rouge soldiers watching the exodus. I could see it as they watched pregnant women passing by, some of them moving very slowly, bent over, stopping every few feet to rest."

Many were reported left dying by the roadside.

Some foreigners reported seeing people who refused to leave their homes gunned down. There have been no reliable accounts of mass executions or wholesale massacres. But some observers believe that many officials and military officers of the former regime may have been killed.

Indian artifact vandalism

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Armed with picks and shovels, even backhoes and bulldozers, 20th century looters are vandalizing the sites of ancient Indian civilizations in the Southwest.

Federal agencies are about to use electronic sensing devices to combat the quest for centuries-old artifacts. And Indian tribes are prohibiting strangers from wandering in areas where ruins are located.

Federal and state agencies say they don't have the money or men to inventory Indian ruins in Arizona, where the problem of vandalism is especially severe. Officials say four-wheel drive vehicles used by vandals are disintegrating fragile traces of past civilizations carved into soft rocks. Other rock paintings are being stolen to sell or spray-painted with four-letter words.

The U.S. forest Service has two criminal investigators for 11 million acres in Arizona, and the Bureau of Land Management, responsible for millions of acres, has been waiting three years for congressional action on the BLM Organic Act. It would give them enforcement power to protect prehistoric Indian artifacts in the southwestern state of Arizona, Utah, California, Nevada, New Mexico and Colorado.

Frustrated by the destruction are scholars, among them John Douglas, a University of Illinois archaeologist recently assigned to the BLM here to inventory historic sites in Arizona and to arrange for their study and protection.

"There probably is no possibility of inventorying all the sites until there are so few left that you can count them on your fingers and toes," Douglas said.

"I have talked to Boy Scouts who have gotten their Indian lore badges by going out and destroying archaeological sites. My thesis site was damaged by a Cub Scout leader."

Many vandalized sites in Arizona are those of the Hohokam Indians, an ancient tribe that disappeared about 1400 A.D. Scientists excavating sites in Southern Arizona have dated some remains back 23 centuries.

Dr. Alfred Ditter Jr., an ASU archaeology professor, said vandals knocked down walls of earth left standing between pits to record soil layers, and that survey stakes were kicked out.

"Motorcyclists became so bold as to ride at high speed through the site while we were working there, dodging between pits and excavation equipment. The crew was powerless to stop them," he said.

"The ruin digger is hard to spot," he explained. "All he has to do is put his tent over a ruin and dig away."

Remains of past civilization near recreation areas have all but been wiped out, and recently, Hibbetts said, he is finding evidence of diggers in areas accessible only by horseback.

Four diggers, out of hundreds, have been caught and prosecuted in Hibbetts' 640,000-acre district in the past three years. "The value of a good pot is $1,000 to $1,600 and the fines we're getting are not commensurate," he said. "The most has been $100."

To discourage digging, the Forest Service tried posting metal plaques emphasizing the $500 fine and 90-day jail term provided by the American Antiquities Act of 1905 for those who disturb any "object of antiquity" on federal land. But wherever plaques were placed, digging increased, Hibbetts said.

Soon the service will place electronic sensors, of the type used to detect guerrilla movements in South Vietnam, in Arizona trouble spots.

Eddie Walters, criminal investigator for the Forest Service, said authorities will use helicopters and airplanes to apprehend anyone detected by the sensors at an Indian site.

Federal officials and archaeologists are calling for public education to make people understand they are not only stealing or desecrating religious articles, but destroying information about the past.

A BLM-produced "public service" film distributed to television stations in the West portrays a weekend "grave-robbing" expedition by a family through the sad eyes of an Indian man and boy.

Women cadets? Ford wants to think it over

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is reserving judgment on whether it would be a good idea to admit women to the U.S. service academies.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen was asked Thursday for Ford's reaction to a House vote Tuesday to admit women to the military, naval and air force academies.

"He wants to think about it a little bit," said Nessen.

GOOD VALUE IDEAS FROM WRIGLEY'S GUM

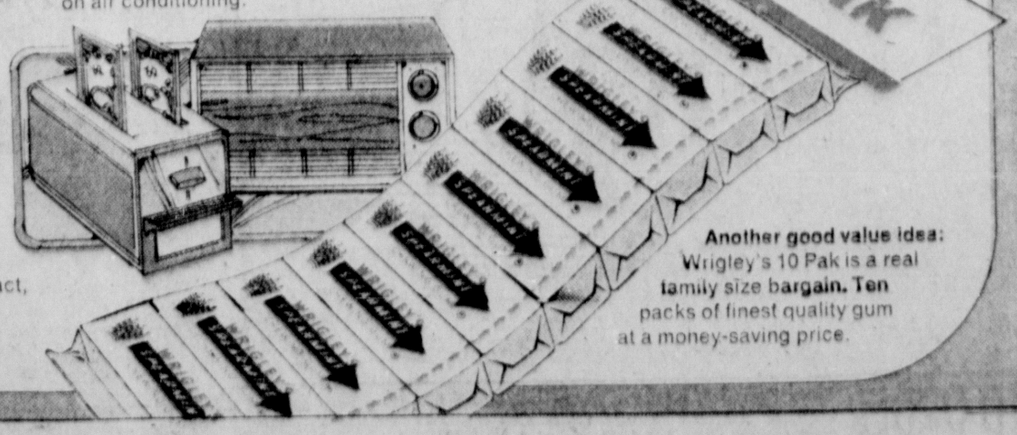

Save at home while on vacation. Shut off water heater and save up to $5 a month; turn up refrigerator a couple of degrees and save up to $2 a month ($4 on frost-free models).

Insurance Cost-cutters. Check your car insurance company and you may save: (a) up to 15% by driving an eligible compact, (b) up to 22% if you use public transportation or car pool to work, (c) up to 10% for gaining "good driver" status.

Cooling Money Saver. For every $2 you save by reducing the use of heat-generating lighting and appliances, you save another $1 on air conditioning.

"SORRY YOU WERE OUT SICK YESTERDAY, FERNSHAW. HOW BADLY WATERLOGGED WERE YOU?"

"MY TROUBLE IS, WHEN I LEARN ANYTHING NEW I HAVE TO FORGET SOMETHING ELSE TO MAKE ROOM FOR IT!"

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — I dyed a pair of shoes, similar to saddle shoes, with two contrasting colors and found that cotton-tipped sticks worked better than the dye applicators when dyeing along the borders of a previously dyed section. No slopover! — EVIE.

DEAR POLLY — When we buy our dog a new flea collar a piece always has to be cut off. We put this under her blanket to kill any fleas present before they get on her. — M.R.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, in this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — My egg timer has many uses. I even let the children hold it while taking their temperatures. It entertains them and I have accurate timing for the thermometer readings. — PENNY.

DEAR POLLY — When making popcorn balls or caramel corn it is often a problem finding a container large enough to hold the corn when mixing the popped corn and syrup. Scour and dry your sink thoroughly and use it. Clean-up is no problem. — BARBARA.

DEAR POLLY — Wrapping a large gift can be a real chore as paper is never wide enough, so I use a paper party tablecloth and it works great. — MRS. L.A.M.

DEAR POLLY — To brighten freshly scrubbed bathroom wall tiles that are dulled from the use of heavy cleansers + spray on silicone car wax. It retards the return of mildew and mineral deposits and restores luster and shine. DON'T USE ON FLOORS! — BEVERLY.

DEAR POLLY — To keep blankets from sliding off the bed, I cut off the fitted part of a worn-out sheet and sew this to the bottom of a blanket. This also makes it easier to make up the bed. — CHRIS.

DEAR POLLY — To clean my electric sewing machine without damage to small parts I use a camel's hair water color brush to reach all the cracks and crevices. — MRS. H.P.S.

DEAR POLLY — Before putting away my grocery shopping I date every can or package and use previously bought items first. — ALICE'L.

DEAR POLLY — I tie an old nylon stocking (cut short) or a man's old sock over the washer hose that empties into the sink. This catches quite a bit of lint that escapes the filter. I remove the sock frequently, as it fills up with lint before four or five loads. — MARIE.

Together

THE OLDEST KNOWN LIVING TREES ARE THE BRISTLECONE PINES, WHICH GROW HIGH ON THE WINDSWEPT SLOPES OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS OF EASTERN CALIFORNIA. THESE ANCIENT TREES MAY LIVE TO BE OVER 4,000 YEARS OLD. EXPERTS RECORD THE OLDEST TREE TO BE ABOUT 4,900 YEARS OLD — PERHAPS THE OLDEST LIVING THING IN THE WORLD. SOME OF THESE TREES WERE GROWING WHEN THE PYRAMIDS OF EGYPT WERE BEING BUILT.

AIR POLICE

Moonlit Moment of Truth

Colleen Dewhurst stars as strong, compassionate Josie Hogan, and Jason Robards as lost alcoholic James Tyrone in a special version of Eugene O'Neill's monumental play, "A Moon for the Misbegotten", directed by Jose Quintero, on The ABC Theatre, Tuesday at 8:30PM. The entire original Broadway cast of the multi-award winning production, which won Quintero a Tony Award for direction, has been reassembled for the television presentation, produced by David Susskind for Talent Associates/Norton Simon in association with Lester Osterman and Elliot Martin. In the O'Neill drama, rich in Irish humor and deeply moving, Josie views herself as "a great ugly lump of a woman" and poses as a brazen trollop to hide her innocence. Then she and Tyrone share a haunting night of love in which they strip away defenses to reveal their true selves.

'RONA LOOKS AT . . .'

What do four of the world's most exciting women have in common with one of Hollywood's most prominent journalists? The answer is a series of revealing and provocative in-person interviews. Rona Barrett, in the space of an hour, elicits from four Hollywood Superstars their most intimate thoughts on love, sex, marriage, and a variety of equally intriguing subjects. "Rona Looks at . . . Raquel and Liza and Cher and Ann-Margret," airs as a CBS Special, Wednesday at 2PM.

In what amounts to a significantly progressive step forward for daytime programming, Rona speaks frankly with Raquel Welch, Liza Minelli, Cher and Ann-Margret in the comfort and privacy of their own homes. Their reactions to their families, their friends, the facts of life and why they are where they are today are honest and refreshing and brutally frank. So provocative are their remarks that CBS has chosen to precede this broadcast with a special announcement urging parental discretion due to mature subject matter. Raquel, Liza, Cher and Ann-Margret were interviewed separately, however their remarks have been deftly edited together so that their comments and opinions on each subject blend together into an hour of personal memories, delightful anecdotes and frank observations.

Rona, who has recently emerged as a popular singer as well as an established author and highly successful broadcast journalist is remarkably successful at getting answers to many questions formerly considered "out of bounds" on television.

'RELUCTANT HERO'

"I don't think I could be a success at anything if I didn't have my tongue in my cheek just a little bit—I'm that way!" In those words, James Garner provides an insight into both his own character and that of Jim Rockford, the private eye he portrays in The Rockford Files on NBC, Fridays at 9PM.

A few years back, Garner starred in Maverick, a top rated series about a Western gambler whose attitude was usually tongue-in-cheek and who became heroic only when forced into it. Jim Rockford is a modern day private detective who charges a $200-a-day fee, is reluctant towards violence, seldom carries a gun and is heroic only when forced. Rockford's approach also is peppered with wry humor. "The formula fits me, I guess," Garner suggests.

In real life, Garner handles situations with the same throw-away dodge. Reminded about an incident in Korea when he led his platoon far behind enemy lines and he was wounded by U.S. planes whose pilots thought they were the enemy, Garner recalled: "True," adding, "but that was an exception. I ate some brave pills and didn't know what I was doing, not to mention that I got wounded while in retreat—in the fanny. Want to see the scars?"

The Rockford Files is produced by Garner's company, Cherokee, in association with both Universal Studios and Roy Huggins' Public Arts. Garner and Huggins also were partners in the Maverick series.

Huggins, whose pen name is John Thomas James (the names of his three sons), has provided the bulk of the stories for the series with other writers, including producer Stephen J. Cannell, doing the scripts. Meta Rosenberg, a long time associate of Garner's, is executive producer. Miss Rosenberg, the only female executive producer of a series on television today, carved herself an enviable niche in show business long before women's lib became into fashion. A former story editor and agent, she counted among her clients Robert Redford, Alan Arkin, Richard Benjamin and Garner. Cannell began his television career writing scripts and later producing Adam-12. He also created the Jack Webb-produced Chase series, and has written scripts for such series as Ironside, Madigan, and It Takes A Thief.

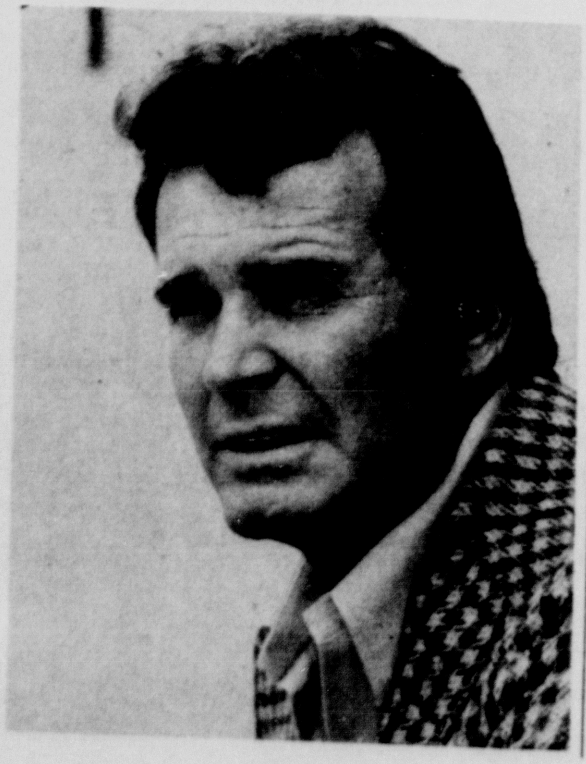

In The Rockford Files, the character Rockford has the unenviable distinction of having spent five years in prison and though the charges were proved false and he received a full pardon, he's still looked upon by police as "bad news." "We don't make the police look bad or stupid," Garner is quick to tell you, "but we don't get much help from them because the only cases we take are ones the police have put a 'closed' label on."

Rockford's office is also his home — a mobile trailer at the beach. It is scroungy on the outside but borderline plush on the inside. "It's cheap, tax deductible, earthquake proof and when I get a case out of town I take it with me," is the way Rockford described his headquarters in one of the early segments. "There is a lot of action in the series," says Garner, pointing out that "there is a big difference between action and violence."

Rockford doesn't carry a gun because "it's too much of a hassle" and he would rather outwit someone than fight. He knows all the tricks and subscribes to the "no holds barred" theory when necessity demands it. The action-packed dramas have an added humorous spice in the play between Rockford and his father, Joseph, a retired trucker who wants his son to get into some other business.

Noah Beery co-stars as the father, and his unique style of humor complements the Garner touch for many a chuckle during the hustle and bustle of crime-solving. Noah (he dropped the Junior a few years ago), was born in New York City while his famed father was making a stage appearance, but his rearing was in Hollywood and vicinity on ranches owned both by his parents and his uncle, Wallace Beery. Noah's portrayal brings to the character the mixed feelings that while he's a concerned father he perhaps is "out for himself."

Garner has kept one promise to himself when he accepted the chores of doing a weekly series. "I was determined we would shoot this show on location and get away from the studio back lot. It takes six days to do an episode and I can truthfully say that of our first 13 shows, 90 per cent of the action took place on the streets, at the beach or at a location site."

'ABC THEATRE DRAMA'

When Colleen Dewhurst and Jason Robards opened in the Broadway revival of Eugene O'Neill's "A Moon for the Misbegotten" in Dec., 1973, they were received with thunderous standing ovations and unabashed raves from critics. The production directed by Jose Quintero emerged from the season with four 1974 Tony Awards including a Special Tony for Distinguished Achievement in the Broadway Theatre.

Miss Dewhurst re-creates her starring role of Josie Hogan and Robards his starring role of James Tyrone, Jr., with Ed Flanders as Phil Hogan, when the entire original Broadway cast is presented in "A Moon for the Misbegotten" on the ABC Theatre, Tuesday at 8:30PM.

According to Flanders, Tony Award winner for his portrayal of Josie's father, Phil Hogan, as an ireful little Irishman, "O'Neill's motivation for writing this play, the last he ever completed, was to give his older brother Jamie, 'the talented one' in his family, one night of peace."

The overwhelming drama of tragedy and triumph in the love between a great raw-boned farm woman and a lost, alcoholic actor was written as a benediction to the real Jamie O'Neill. "Misbegotten" is set in Sept., 1923, two months prior to his death which left Eugene O'Neill alone as the last member of his branch of the family since he considered neither of his own two sons pure Irish. The play takes its place as a final act continuing the life of Jamie beyond that part presented in "Long Day's Journey Into Night," the play which presented Robards, as Jamie, in his first major Broadway role.

Miss Dewhurst, in her Tony Award-winning role as Josie, views herself as a "great cow" of a woman no man could desire. She tries to mask her shyness by posturing as a loose woman and "the scandal of the neighborhood."

Josie's widowed father, Phil Hogan, is a choleric little Irishman so suspicious that he doesn't even trust himself at times. Aware that Josie has a soft spot in her heart for Jim, he schemes to trap him into marrying his daughter.

Josie understands Jim and realizes he only acts hard and scheming at times "to get back at life when it's tormenting him" and that when he is strange, he is lost again in grief over his mother's death.

When Jim arrives at the farm with word that Hogan's neighbor, T. Stedman Harder, is enroute there to complain about their pigs getting into his ice pond, Josie invites him to return that night to "spoon in the moonlight and you can tell me your thoughts."

When Tyrone comes again to the farm after imbibing at the Inn, he and Josie hope for a night that is to be different for both of them. Instead, a confessional by moonlight takes place on the farmhouse steps as they relentlessly strip away masks of pretense that have made life bearable. "You can take the truth, Josie—from me. Because you and I belong to the same club. We can kid the world but we can't fool ourselves, like most people, no matter what we do," Jim says.

'KEEPER OF THE BEES'

A few years ago, Steve Forrest, star of ABC's S.W.A.T., Mondays at 9PM, called pest exterminators to remove a swarm of bees which had noisily settled inside the walls of his home.

"The buzzing made us a little nervous," recalls Steve, "but when honey began staining the walls, things got downright sticky. The bees had to go." After the exterminators had done their job and the walls had been refinished, Steve began reading about bees and eventually became fascinated with the little buzzers.

"I was raised a country boy," says Steve, "and I decided it would be good if my three sons could learn about natural things like raising honey bees. We've been doing it ever since. The honey is marvelous and we share it with our friends. I even had labels printed up that read Honey From the Forrests."

Steve wears protective clothing when tending his bees only because he was once stung above the left eye. "I was making a movie for Walt Disney at the time," laughs Steve, "and the sting swelled up and caused some problems for the cameraman. I don't want that to happen again. Some of those bees might not take kindly to me being associated with anything spelled S-W-A-T."

The Jerry 'n' Rocky Show: Good Humor In the White House

A Special Picture Essay by the Author Of "Photoanalysis"

President Ford and Vice President Rockefeller—
Not a Laugh a Minute. But....

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SALLY STRUTHERS

What was your scariest experience?—M.O., Sacramento, Calif.

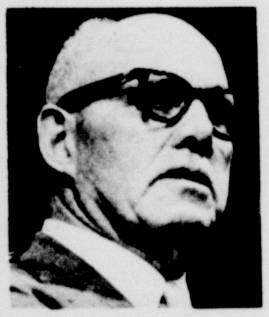

● One night after I left the studio, I was chased and nearly run off the road by two thugs. I drove like a maniac to the Beverly Hills Police Station, but realized, too late, that in swinging around I'd come in the wrong side and had ended up in a distant parking lot. So there I was, running around like a chicken with its head cut off, and the men in the car approaching. I bolted into the police station screaming, "Two men are after me! Help me!" The police went outside and looked, but of course by that time they were gone. But I had no assurance that they weren't parked around the corner, so I asked the police to escort me home. You know what they said? They said they could only take me as far as the city limits. And that's what they did. When we got to the city limits, they turned around and said over their loudspeaker, "Good luck, lady!" I couldn't believe it! Luckily I got home all right.

Why do you think so many show business marriages fail? —J.C., Utica, N.Y.

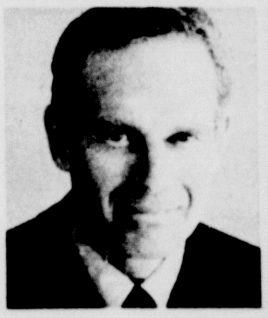

● Shouldn't we first establish that show business causes divorce? I think the divorce rate for people in show business is on a par with that of other people. However, I do agree that it is conducive to romance. And I think it's dangerous to get close to your costar from a professional point of view, because once the "affair" is over, the two of you can never work together comfortably again.

FOR GEORGE MEANY, president of the AFL-CIO

● Well, I don't read much fiction. The last novel I read that made much of an impression on me was "Tropic of Cancer." My favorite reading is history, biography, political memoirs and the like, especially on American themes. I enjoyed "Plain Speaking," the taped interviews with Harry Truman, and found Solzhenitsyn's "Gulag Archipelago" fascinating.

FOR CHARLTON HESTON, star of "Earthquake"

You're a mystery to the public. Is this from choice?—J. Pierre, Port Huron, Mich.

● I don't know why—or how. Over the years, I've given many interviews and am always ready to answer questions because I know actors cannot expect to have absolute privacy. However, when I'm not working or traveling, I'd much rather stay home, away from the spotlight, enjoying the "personal" side of my life with family and friends.

FOR PAUL "BEAR" BRYANT, University of Alabama football coach

Why did the police escort you off the field after Notre Dame upset Alabama on New Year's night? Did someone really threaten your life?—M. Ammons, Hart, Texas

● Often there is a crowd at the dressing-room entrance and it helps to have a police escort. Fans have stolen my hat, and sometimes men who have been drinking have cursed me and my team and coaches. My life hasn't been threatened, but with my bowl record, some people might like to!

Is it true that when Wallis Simpson was born, the doctor told her mother she was "fit for a king"?—Mrs. Lela Owens, Havelock, N.C.

● The full conversation, according to her cousin, Mrs. Elizabeth Biddle Gordon, went like this: "Doctor, is the baby all right? Has she all her fingers and all her toes?" "She's perfect," answered the doctor. "In fact, she's fit for a king."

FOR MICHAEL DOUGLAS

● When I'm good and ready, and when I feel there's a reason to do so. I believe in marriage, and the fact that my parents were divorced has no effect on my attitude. Right now we're happy, and one day we'll surprise everyone and become Mr. & Mrs.

FOR MARLO THOMAS

As a half-Italian, are you as great a cook as Italian women are supposed to be?—A.S., Fort Worth, Texas

● I can cook, but doubt I'm "great." I'd rather cook for large groups (that's the actress in me—I like a full house) because if I take the time and trouble to make a complicated dish, I want lots of people to see and taste what I did. I'm addicted to chocolate, so anyone who comes for dinner is sure to get pasta and chocolate—not slenderizing, but delicious.

FOR CONNIE STEVENS

● I think of myself as "the girl next door," and in my opinion Marilyn was the greatest sex queen who ever lived. But I'm flattered to be compared to Marilyn, because I admired her. As to our lives, there's no comparison at all.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Can you tell me something about the daughter of the late Jack Benny?—Anne Springer, Daytona Beach, Fla.

● Mary and Jack Benny adopted a daughter, Joan, whose first marriage at 19 in 1954 was to N.Y. stockbroker Seth Baker. She and Baker had the most lavish wedding Hollywood had seen in years—since Shirley Temple wed John Agar. It reportedly set her dad back $50,000. Two years and one son later, Joan was divorced and, hours later, married Bud Rudolph, a Hollywood haberdasher. This marriage produced a daughter, and another divorce. In 1963, Joan became the wife of film executive Robert Blumofe. Joan said in 1962 she was rarely recognized in public, but she always enjoyed meeting all the famous folk her father knew, and she's still star-struck. She can't tell a joke and once said: "When Dad chuckles at one of my yarns, I'm happy for three days."

Humor Is Alive and Well Again in the White House

White House/Kennerly

"Jerry and Rocky, the venerable President and Vice President, kid each other a lot and keep the humor rolling. . . ."

"It's hard to find a room in Washington that isn't bugged. When I swear in witnesses, I ask them to give the whole truth, nothing but the truth and please speak directly into the flower vase."
—Vice President Nelson Rockefeller

By Frances Spatz Leighton
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

They may not be the new Olsen and Johnson, but they're the funniest team in the White House in the memory of the Washington press corps. Not since Vice President Alben Barkley regaled Harry Truman with stories of how "you can't get there from here" has there been so much laughter around the White House.

Jerry and Rocky, the venerable President and Vice President, kid each other a lot and keep the humor rolling, even when the state of the Union and the economy tend to get them—and the popularity polls—uptight.

The President, for example, quotes Rocky, and tells how the Vice President, whose family commands its own fleet of planes, complained at what he had come down to as Vice President—Air Force 2. Ford said, "When Rocky saw his plane, he said he had something of his own that went faster.

"I said, 'One of your jets?'

"He said, 'No, my lawn mower.'"

Nixon kept his Vice President, Spiro Agnew, at arm's length and let Agnew be the clown, when there was any clowning or ridiculing to be done. LBJ also guarded his own position jealously and did not spend too much time fraternizing with the ebullient Hubert Humphrey, his Vice President, just as Kennedy, when he was President, seemed to ignore Vice President Lyndon, and leave his Number Two man to his own devices.

But all that has changed, and now we have a President who seems to delight in his Vice President's company and keeps him as close by as possible.

When he's out giving a speech, Rocky doesn't mind poking a little fun at himself. He likes to start out by saying:

"It's a real thrill for me to be here tonight representing the Republican party. This has never happened to me before." Then he pauses significantly and mutters, "Not that I didn't try."

A little later, he brings down the house by commenting, "So far, for 1976, the Democrats seem to be suffering an embarrassment of riches. [Pause] That's an expression I never quite understood until my confirmation hearings!"

As for President Ford, he is no patsy and can give as good as he gets. Politicians well remember when he brought down Ronald Reagan with one wry comment: "I don't think Reagan dyes his hair—it's just prematurely orange."

Those who attend White House parties soon learn that President Ford is a master of the punch line and doesn't need his speechwriter (and sometime contributor to FAMILY WEEKLY), Bob Orben, to put words in his mouth. For example, when singer Vikki Carr, who is a Mexican-American, asked the President, "What is your favorite Mexican dish?" Ford shot back: "You."

Sports also brings out the best in presidential humor. And here Ford plays it humble. Or to quote him more specifically, "I'm very modest about my golf game. But then, I have a lot to be modest about."

He teed off at the Inverrary Classic in Florida, back in February, with a good drive, but ended two strokes over par on the first hole. "This is why," he said, "when I play golf, my Secret Service men go on combat pay."

Ford likes to kid Kissinger about his "diplomatic game of golf," explaining to his sportsmen friends, "Henry Kissinger is probably the greatest diplomat the world has ever known, and I'll tell you how I know this. The other day I was in a sand trap and there was a water hazard beyond that, and then another 60 feet to the first hole.

"I'll tell you what Henry did. He conceded the putt."

The needling President Ford enjoyed most was that of heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, who visited the President at the White House and told him with mock belligerence, "You made a big mistake letting me come, because now I'm going after your job!"

Ford fixed him with a steely eye, then grinned and said, "Stop by another day—there are some days I'd be happy to let you have it!"

Ford loves to downgrade the desirability of his office. As he told one group, "The greatness of America is that anyone can grow up to be president of something—an airline, an auto company, a utility or [pause] President of the United States." Then Ford looked around laconically and added, "That's just one of the chances you take."

The President doesn't even mind telling about the way he was introduced by an old football teammate, who said, "I played football with Jerry Ford for two years and it made a lasting impression on me. I was the quarterback and Jerry was the center, and I must say, it gave me an entirely different view of the President!"

The President assumes a mock-injured air as he tells about the year he was voted the team's most valuable player as a senior at Michigan in 1934. "That year we lost seven out of eight games," he says. "Yet they voted me their most valuable player. I couldn't decide whether to smile or sue."

But it's sports he most frequently turns to as a source of humor, as when he said, "There are many similarities between football and government. Sometimes, for example, a lot of talk goes on for hours or days without anyone really saying anything. In Washington, they call it a filibuster. In football, it's called Howard Cosell."

President Ford likes nothing better than making a speech. But sometimes he suffers because his listeners don't know if he's punning or just generally garbling the English language.

As a prime example, he arrived at the National Press Club for the swearing-in of the new club president, William Broom. Rising to administer the oath, Ford deadpanned, "This is a suspicious occasion."

Warming to his subject, Jerry Ford told Broom about the perils of being President. "First," he said, sounding very sad, "they take away your swimming pool. And then they ask you to come clean." (This brought down the house with reporters, who know that Richard Nixon covered the White House swimming pool and made it into the press room.)

The President makes sure, whenever

"Now we have a President who seems to delight in his Vice President's company and keeps him as close by as possible."

White House/Kennerly

"They may not be the new Olsen and Johnson, but they're the funniest team in the White House in the memory of the Washington press corps."

he can, that his audience knows that he personally has experienced hardship and economic depression. At the University Club of Washington recently, he reminisced about working his way through college: "I was the only athlete in Michigan history who ever had a football knee and dishpan hands at the same time."

He went on to comment that he got his first degree in 1935 in economics, and added that he was still getting a degree—"a third degree, at least from some people, and it's still in economics."

Insiders claim it is because of their close personal friendship that Vice President Rockefeller has taken the pains to announce, this far away in time, that he has no intention of following Jerry Ford as President, even if Rockefeller is the heir apparent of the Republican party.

There is, apparently, no competition between the two men. The Oval Office is always open to Rocky, who does not hesitate to drop in for a few cheery words; and Ford, in turn, proved his friendship by dropping everything and flying to New York to be present at a dinner honoring the Vice President.

Around the White House, President Ford milks every situation for all the laughs he can get, admitting freely that "humor is my therapy."

When his wife Betty got all steamed up over her efforts to gain support for the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment and was picketed at the White House for her trouble, the President did not give her the "now, now, dear" treatment. Instead he needled: "As a great philosopher once said, nobody will ever win the battle of the sexes. There's too much fraternizing with the enemy."

As for his daughter, he is forever cautioning her to be economical in her purchases, saying, "Remember, I'm still a Ford—not a Cadillac or Lincoln." And he loves to put her on by telling friends the story of how he got his golden retriever.

"Let me tell you about Susan and how she got me my dog, Liberty," he begins, as Susan stands by, shaking her head helplessly.

"Well, actually, Susan thought she'd surprise me, and she called up a highly recommended kennel and said she wanted to order a golden retriever. But it wasn't that easy.

"The owner wanted to know whom the dog would be going to, but Susan said she couldn't tell him because it was a surprise. Well, the man explained he couldn't sell a dog unless he knew it was going to a good home and exactly what kind of home it was.

"Susan assured him it would be a good home and the couple were friendly and middle-aged and lived in a big white house with a fence around it.

"The kennel man said, 'Good. But do they own or rent?'

"Susan mulled that over for a minute and she said, 'Well, you might call it public housing.'"

Unlike most people, Ford can take it when humor with a biting edge is directed at him, and sometimes he even knows how to take advantage of it. When Lyndon Johnson made fun of then-Congressman Ford, saying, "The trouble with Jerry Ford is that he played football too long without a helmet," Ford turned away his own wrath by turning up at the University of Michigan with a toy-sized football helmet tied to his head.

He even got a laugh out of the comment that presidential candidate Sen. Henry Jackson made about Ford and his public: "The honeymoon is over—and in two years we can make the divorce final."

Reporters remember a transcontinental flight when they presented the then Vice President with a sweatshirt bearing the large inscription, "Official U.S. Streaker." They thought no more about it, but suddenly, an hour or so before the plane was due to land in Washington, out popped Jerry Ford from his private compartment. He was wearing his streaker sweatshirt and proceeded to jog up and down the aisle.

President Ford likes to turn the tables on members of the press any chance he gets, and not too long ago at a Washington Press Club party he kidded UPI reporter Helen Thomas: "I'm firmly convinced that if the good Lord had made the world today, He would have spent six days creating the heaven and earth and all the living creatures upon it, but on the seventh day, He would not have rested. He'd have been too busy justifying it to Helen Thomas."

BE AN UPHOLSTERER and decorator

See the high prices of new furniture on the market today, and you'll see why reupholstering is growing so popular. More and more people feel they can save money and get quality work by having their fine old pieces reupholstered.

With the craftsmanship you gain through Upholstering & Decorating School home-study, you will be able to transform a worn old sofa or chair into a handsome decorator piece—and get well paid for your time.

You CAN DO IT SO INEXPENSIVELY that you can afford to do it just for the pleasure of beautifying your own home.

Phyllis Major of Jaffrey, N.H. started with us because "I wanted to learn how to reupholster my own furniture" but after completing a sofa and two arm chairs which she proudly showed to her friends, she found "some of them want me to reupholster their furniture when I feel that I am ready."

Eleanor and Dave Van Deusen, two recent graduates of our unique home-study training, wrote: "We have earned quite a bit of money doing jobs part time, most of which has gone into fixing up our shop in our backyard along with buying old pieces of furniture to repair and reupholster. The way it looks, we may have to go into the business full time."

It is easy if you have ordinary skills. About half our graduates are women, and as Eleanor and Dave Van Deusen prove, it can be an ideal "husband-wife" business. The course is "hands-on, learn by doing" and necessary materials and your professional tools are included.

Photoanalysis:

Here's What a Psychologist Sees In These Pictures

By Robert U. Akeret, Ed. D.

Millions of people take billions of photographs each year—yet how often do we ever linger over a photo to analyze the wealth of information that may be stored in it? Photoanalysis is what I call analyzing photographs for psychological meaning. This method can be learned by anyone if he follows the guidelines outlined in my book ["Photoanalysis," by Robert U. Akeret, Pocket Books, $1.95]. I've been using photographs in my work as a psychologist and psychoanalyst for over 20 years—I've been deeply impressed by how photos can correct distortions, pinpoint times of dramatic change and tap hidden resources.

AUTHOR & WIFE

MARTHA MITCHELL

Sometimes a single photo will tell a complete story. There are times, however, when you need a series to comprehend what is happening. Carefully study these following four photographs of Martha Mitchell during an interview. There are countless themes that one could observe and discuss. I will limit my observations to a single theme—public body distance. I see the two women engaged in a "dance" that they are probably not even aware of consciously. Martha sits as close as she can to her biographer, Winzola McLendon, and she leans forward to make contact. Ms. McLendon, however, is not comfortable with the physical closeness—her "air space" has been invaded, and she recoils in her chair. Notice how in the first two photos, her head, body, right shoulder and right arm are all placed as far back as possible, away from Martha.

This third photo has dramatically caught the impact of a telephone call. I tend to think of Martha Mitchell with a telephone in hand, but notice how her body position has changed. She is now erect and her attention has shifted to the telephone conversation. Ms. McLendon has not yet adjusted herself to the change in physical distance between them.

Now the physical dance between them has come full cycle. Martha is absorbed in listening to the telephone conversation—she is even leaning away from her biographer, and this increased distance has allowed Ms. McLendon to shift into an upright position instead of leaning away from Martha. People like to keep certain distances between themselves and others—and the photos illustrate this fact.

PAT LOUD

This photograph of Pat Loud was taken from the footage of "An American Family," the public-television documentary series that focused on the lives of the Louds and their children. Examine her face closely. What do you see? What feelings are aroused in you? I see a sad, drawn, depressed face, reflecting that whatever is troubling her goes very deep. Her mouth is sealed—she appears to be suffering stoically, repressing her true feelings.

These three photos were taken many months after her divorce. She is with her older daughter. Study the three photos with particular attention to Pat Loud's facial expression. Do you see the change? Her depression has lifted—her eyes, lips and mouth all reflect warmth and inner tranquility. Life and vitality have returned to her face, which reflects these feelings genuinely—not simply in a plastic pose for a photographic sitting.

What do you notice about the relationship between Pat and her daughter Delilah? The Martha Mitchell photo series reflects a study in public distance, and I think the above three photos indicate a study in personal distance. They are physically close, but there is still a sense of independence. They are separate and yet together at the same time.

Do you see the difference in their emotional participation? The daughter maintains her steady, confronting look, while the mother expresses a range of feeling from thoughtful-reflective, to warmth, to control. Obviously, photographs cannot capture a person's entire personality or tell the whole story about a change in one's life, but I believe photos can tell some part of the story—and I believe these are evidence that Pat Loud's life is progressing in a happier direction.

DON'T PAY 1¢ MORE FOR GAS THIS YEAR THAN YOU DID LAST!

Money-saving secrets so powerful that we repeat our guarantee to you—

Don't Pay 1¢ More For Gas This Year Than You Did Last, OR YOUR FULL MONEY BACK!

How can we make this promise? It's a cinch! Because what we're giving you right now are the Super Gas Savers that Detroit probably won't put on their production models till 1980–or even later! The kind of Super Gas Squeezers that Shell Oil proved existed last year, when they coaxed over 376 miles a gallon out of a standard gasoline-powered car, CHANGED IN THE RIGHT WAY TO CUT THE GAS-WASTERS RIGHT OUT OF ITS ENGINE!

(Yes, that's 100 miles a gallon...200 miles a gallon...300 miles a gallon...right up to 376 miles a gallon–from a modified car with the same type of engine that you drive today! Because Shell engineers wanted to see what was THE ABSOLUTE MAXIMUM GAS MILEAGE A CAR COULD DELIVER–IF THEY CUT THE JUNK OUT OF IT, AND GAVE ITS ENGINE FREE PLAY!)

You can't do everything they did, of course! But you CAN take dozens of their tricks...and U.S. Government tricks (write the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. for Report A1C-240, and see what they say)...and Indianapolis competition tricks... and put them all together to keep as much as an extra $800 in your pocket this year! Like this...

For Example, From Now On, Why Not "BURN" AIR In Your Car!

This is just one Super Gas Saver that you probably never dreamed existed, but that auto engineers have been using on custom cars for years! You've heard, of course, of "Ram Jet Super-Chargers", that cost hundreds of dollars, but that deliver huge new horsepower (and therefore gas mileage) to the engines they're installed on!

Well, here's the world's easiest way to make your own "baby" Super-charger! It takes only minutes! It requires just one simple ingenious trick! And it atmospherically forces great heavy gulps of air to mix with your gasoline...thins that gasoline out...burns that gasoline more and more and more efficiently (especially when you "open her up" on the highway)...and lets you zoom past other cars roaring with laughter, because you know that YOU'RE burning LESS GAS than they are!

But This Is Just The Beginning! Because Now You Save Gas Just By The Way You BUY It! Just By The Way You Park Your Car! Just By The Way You "SHIFT" Your Automatic Transmission!

For example:

You no longer have to pay an extra $100 or more a year in "sucker" gas bills, just because you chose an automatic transmission instead of a stick shift! Because now you can actually get MUCH BETTER MILEAGE–with that automatic transmission and the simple secret on page 16–than your "wiseacher" friend who has to juggle his manual gears at every city traffic light!

(Time to learn–just about as long as it takes you to drive to your neighborhood shopping center! Result–that you take command of the automatic transmission! Money in your pocket–hundreds of dollars over the rest of your driving life!)

PLUS:

How to turn a screw–and that's all there is to it–and get up to 15% MORE mileage in stop and go driving!

How to save up to $1.50 every time you fill up (and think how many times a year you fill up), simply by giving one ingenious little command to your gas station attendant! (You'll kick yourself for not having thought of it before!)

PLUS:

How to get pick-up that makes your friends' eyes pop open, and STILL save gas! (Yes! Forget about the old myth that you have to drive like a maiden aunt–or watch other cars pass you–to get Super Mileage! The engineers don't, and why should you!)

PLUS:

How to get as much as ONE MORE GALLON OF "FREE" DRIVING, FOR EVERY TEN THAT YOU BURN TODAY... and get up to 40,000 miles from a single set of plugs!

How to convert your battery–in exactly 60 seconds–into a Super Power Plant that may very easily last the full life of your car–and save gallons of gas that hard slow winter starting is draining out of that car right now! (The total cost? Two cents! And not one penny more!)

PLUS:

How to adjust your engine for summer heat, and save up to 2 "boil-over" wasted miles per gallon . . . how to do the same for winter, and beat mileage-sapping freezing cold . . . how to insert a special piece of metal that costs only 10¢ into your radiator, and get still MORE mileage . . . even a complete section on low-cost "super-tuning" your car to get premium performance on the lowest-cost regular gas!

But Listen To This: Everything That Helps You Save Gas ALSO HELPS YOU SAVE ON OIL, TIRES AND REPAIRS! So You Pocket Another $200 To $500 This Year!

For example:

How to "tune" your car as you drive! Spend an extra 60 seconds with it once a week . . . never leave your driver's seat . . . and keep your plugs firing clean, and your engine purring like a kitten!

How to slice tire costs in half–add as much as 20,000 miles to the life of your tires–without using anything more "mechanical" than an old rag!

How to cool the inside of your car on hot summer days, without the expense of air conditioning! How to get up to $500 of Free services from your gas station every year . . . which the big companies would like to keep hidden!

How to preserve anti-freeze for THREE full years! Get up to 30% more horsepower, without spending a penny! Double the life of your oil! Even get new-car performance for as much as 100,000 miles or more–by preserving the life of its expensive parts, and avoiding the need for major repairs!

And Much, Much More! Far More Than We Can Even Begin To List Here! All Yours To Read From Cover To Cover, Without Risking A Cent!

Gas-saving car-maintaining books have sold for as high as $25 apiece! But now this amazing new car owner's fix-it yourself book is yours for only $3.98; and it is completely guaranteed, or every cent of that money back! You have nothing to lose! Act today!

White House/Kennerly

One thing the President found to tease his Vice President about was a news story about a man who had a deal for Rocky. The man had a bronze statue of an armed youth that had once belonged to Rockefeller's grandfather, John D. He was offering to exchange it for some other art object the Vice President could give him.

"Why don't you offer him your vice presidential chandelier?" teased Ford. "You could swap him for that."

"I can't," retorted Rocky. "I need it to stay awake." As Rocky tells the story: "I am reminded of the importance of the Vice Presidency every time I look at the chandelier hanging in my Senate office.

"The same chandelier hung in the White House until Teddy Roosevelt became annoyed because the wind, blowing through the White House windows, made the chandelier tinkle. Finally Teddy said, 'Send that chandelier over to the Vice President's office. It should help keep him awake.'"

The President is trying to keep his Vice President awake by giving him plenty of work to do, like the job of investigating the CIA.

About that assignment, the Vice President quips, "The investigation is taking a little longer than we planned. We lost a lot of time trying to find a room in Washington that wasn't bugged." Then Rocky adds, "But now I've got the hang of it. When I swear in witnesses, I ask them to give the whole truth, nothing but the truth and please speak directly into the flower vase."

Rocky must take a certain amount of ribbing from the President, as when Ford needled him recently about his gift-giving proclivities, which became known to the nation during the confirmation hearings on Capitol Hill. Rocky shot back, "I should have stuck to my grandfather's example—only giving away dimes."

The Vice President in turn likes to kid the President about how Ford is throwing him out of his own home—the Rockefeller estate on Foxhall Road—and moving him to Admiral's House, which will be the official vice presidential residence.

"I've had a house in Washington all these years," sighs Rocky, shaking his head, "and now I'm getting kicked out. They must be trying to find something to keep my wife busy. Not only that but I've got to go through all that redecorating again. And to top it off, they're putting me in a smaller place—12 acres, when I'm used to 18." Then he adds, "Only a President of the United States could make a fellow do that."

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Is There More in Your Words Than Meets the Ear?

True or False: The image a given word conjures up in your mind depends on whether you're a man or a woman. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. When people talk to themselves a lot, it's a sign their brains are leaking and they're lacking in mental horsepower.

2. You can use a single word to develop any personality characteristic that you wish you had more of—such as patience, self-confidence, serenity, willpower or whatever.

3. The image a given word conjures up in your mind depends on whether you're a man or a woman.

4. Swear words, when chosen discriminately and employed judiciously, do much to emphasize and make more credible the message you are trying to get across.

ANSWERS

1. False. There is no basis for the notion that having a conversation with yourself—as long as you understand what you say—indicates that you're losing your marbles. Psychological studies of internal speech—talking to oneself silently or aloud—and the thinking process show that: "Internal speech, as a mechanism of human thought, organizes and directs thought, maintains its purposeful character and leads to logical completion of the process."

2. True. Studies at the Psychosynthesis Research Foundation show that any word possesses the power of stimulating the activity associated with it. A technique found effective in modifying or changing a person's behavior or attitudes is described as follows: "Choose a word that expresses the quality you want to develop (courage, patience, confidence, etc.). Put a card with that word printed on it where it will be easily noticed—at the bedside, on a desk, table or wall." Even if you do not consciously notice it, its visual image produces an impression on your receptive unconscious and works on it.

3. True. One study has shown, for example, that while women tended to associate the word "garden" with flowers, the image it conjured up in men was likely to be weeds and vegetables ("decoration for the female, outdoor occupation for the male"). Women associated the word "baby" with darling, while men associated it with cry. The word "make" was associated by men with money, while it made women think of dress. "Shift" made men think of football, while the same word caused women to think of the gear shift in an automobile.

4. False—according to studies at the University of Kentucky, where it was found that "profanity in communications had a detrimental effect on the perceived credibility of the communicator." Such practice may make your speech more colorful, but it is likely to make it less convincing.

"On March 18th, I switched to the rich flavor of MJB. Why? Because it's important to me to get a rich cup of coffee everytime. Thank you, MJB."

Introducing More and More

Here it is. More.

The first 120mm cigarette. A whole new look. A whole new feel. A whole new length.

But either way, it's More.

More smokes slower too, yet draws easy for more enjoyment. (Which gives you more time for those relaxing moments.)

More Menthol starts with a blast and cruises you through the longest, slowest-burning, coolest-smoking experience you've ever had.

More. And More Menthol. They sit neat in your hand like they were made for it and fit your face like they found a home.

TINY TURK AND JO ANN HOSS

Size was not a factor in this contest: Jo Ann Hoss weighs in at a mere 118 pounds and yet she holds the title of Shrimp Eating Champion, which she earned in July, 1971, by shucking and downing 5 lbs. 10 ozs. of shrimp. At 6-8, 480 lbs., Tiny Turk was simply no match for her. What is her secret? "My size is certainly not an advantage, but my husband and I run a wholesale shrimp business in Freeport, Texas, and perhaps from that I've learned how to shuck faster than most. Also, I do like to eat—I came from a family of eight children, and if you didn't eat quickly you just might go hungry," Jo Ann said laughingly. "The hardest part of the contest comes at the end because it takes supreme concentration not to get sick." Even though Jo Ann hasn't competed since she earned the title, she still holds the record and is listed in "The Guinness Book of World Records." Soon after the competition she developed an allergy to shrimp. Shucks!

CATHY RIGBY
Ballet was too tame

The little girl with the big will to win: "At the age of eight, Cathy began taking ballet lessons. She found the disciplined movements enjoyable but not acrobatic enough. When she heard that a local youth center was offering classes in trampoline, Cathy begged her father to take her there. Paul Rigby recalled that first lesson as the opening of a door to a new universe for his daughter. 'On the very first night,' he said, 'she was doing backflips!' . . . Cathy was close to her eleventh birthday when she met the noted gymnastics coach, Bud Marquette, the man who was to change her life. 'When Cathy came to me in 1963,' Marquette said years later, 'she came in shorts and bare feet. She looked just like a ragamuffin. All she could do was cartwheels. But in about two months she was better than girls who had been training for two years. She never fooled around. She would have excelled no matter what.'" From "Women Who Win," by Francene Sabin (Random House, $3.95).

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?

One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it — does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY —you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.
